Oakland students migrate to ACHS

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Sometimes serendipity with students strikes strange matches that creates something special.

There is the case of Oakland Grade School students who migrated to Antioch Community High School.

Steve Scott teaches an elective biology class at ACHS about animal behavior. Mary Gunther is a first grade teacher at Oakland. Both teachers were working with their students to follow migrating animals with the aid of computers.

ACHS Dean Steven Schoenfelder suggested to each teacher, that they bring their students together for one class.

"Mary Gunther's class has been tracking the migrations of six different animals," Schoenfelder said. "They've been tracking on maps supplied by Rand McNally."

Gunther said, "We were doing the manatees, monarch (butterflies), robins, the wolves, whooping cranes, and humming birds."

Information about their migration progress was plotted on a map so her students could see a weekly update of where the mammals, birds, and insects were.

"For my kids, it was exciting for the robins," Gunther said. "This is something they saw in their own neighborhood."

The robin sightings by children were consistent with what they saw on the plotting map.

First grade student Erin Schoenfelder had selected robins as her subject for careful study. "Because, I like birds," she said. "It's one of my favorite ones. I like the sound they make. They are around here. I like the way they look."

"I think they migrated here when the snow was melting," she said. Their arrival coincided with what she and her study partner, Jamie Jorgensen, saw on the maps at school.

Classmate Abram Crosby was following wolves on the school maps along with friends Logan, Alex, and Ben. "They thought it was good," he said.

According to Gunther, her students never saw the web site from where the information to plot the migration was coming. The school has computers, but children do not surf the Internet.

Going to ACHS would add a dimension to their learning that was not possible easily at Oakland.

"It was an opportunity to go see where we were getting the information," she said.

Steve Scott's high school students were monitoring migrations tracked by satellites. "We can follow their movements by downloading satellite telemetry data," he said. Two students who had since graduated— Dave Wallstadt and April Wrinkle (www.learner.org/jnnorth) (www.wolf.org)— had found the sites for him.

Oakland students traveled to ACHS by bus where they were met and escorted to the high school biology labs. "Some were a little nervous at first, then they were really excited," Gunther said. "They were surprised how big the school was."

Indeed, her students liked the visit so much that they wanted to stay for recess with the high school students. They were told that there is no recess at ACHS.

Students charged in shooting

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Four children playing with a gun that shot Stacey Jesse, 14, of Antioch were charged on Tuesday, April 21 with offenses related to the incident.

All children involved in the event were 14 years old.

The young male who shot Jesse was charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Two other young males present are charged with theft of a firearm.

All four children present at the unintentional shooting were charged with unlawful possession of a firearm by a minor.

A fifth child present, female, was not charged.

"This minor is charged with recklessly causing the death of Miss Jesse," said Mike Waller, State's Attorney for Lake County.

The act was considered reckless because the child had a gun with a bullet, knew there was a bullet in it, and he pointed it at her and pulled the trigger. "He believed the gun would not fire," Waller said.

"They are not in custody," he said. There is no basis under law to confine the children involved in the incident in a youth home.

The range of possible penalties is from probation to placement with the juvenile department of corrections.

Antioch's 'Be on the Team' program honors photographer Steve Young

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

This time, Steve Young was on the receiving end of the bubble gum.

The Lakeland Newspapers photographer was shocked as he walked to the podium to take his community service award, presented by Ron Gillespie of Antioch's "Be on the Team" program. Young was honored for 47 years of attendance at Antioch sports events and taking photos.

"I had no idea. They invited me to the banquet to take some photographs of the kids receiving their awards," Young said.

Young, who two years ago retired from OMC Corp., said the rewarding factor of his work is, "seeing the kids do well."

Young stories passed through the room like wildfire.

"I remember going to a football game between Antioch and Grant. It was raining so hard, you could not see 15 feet in front of you. Three-fourths of the way through, they called the game," said Young.

"Then there was the night I brought new shoes to a football game. It rained so hard they were ruined," Young said.

Then there are the tales of how Young made it to some basketball games.

"We played a game at Cary-Grove once. There was a light mist when we started to leave Antioch. By the time we got to the school, it was snowing. It took us seven and one-half hours to make it back to Antioch. And a semi-tractor slipped off the road and we all got out and helped it back on," he said.

With pleasure he recalls one time when a girls' basketball game was delayed for his arrival.

"The players said they would not play until I showed up. The referees gave them an extra 15 minutes of warm-ups," said Young.

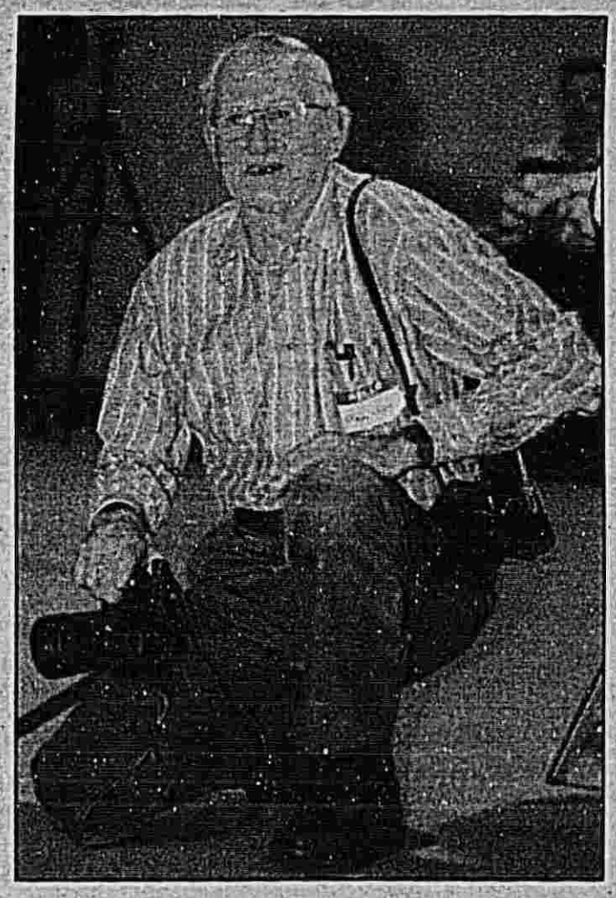

Young's contributions were not lost on the basketball players gathered at the dinner at Antioch Evangelical Free Church.

"Steve is one of our biggest supporters. He means a lot to us," Lisa Ipsen said.

"He puts a lot of tradition into it. I remember when I was five years old and going to my brothers' games. He would always offer me a piece of candy," David Gooch said.

A life-long resident of Antioch, Young's interest in photography began as a sophomore at ACHS when he found some old photography equipment. He

STUDENTS: Youth to face charges in shooting death

Antioch Upper Grade School 8th grade honor roll student Stacey Jesse died from the unintentional gunshot wound Wednesday, April 15 at St. Therese Medical Center. The preliminary police investigation suggested that it was an accidental shooting that occurred at the home of a friend of Jesse.

In the course of the police investigation, it was determined that there were five juveniles in the room at the time of the shooting. A .25-caliber automatic gun had been brought to the house two weeks earlier by a sixth juvenile. The gun had been brought there so it could be held. The homeowner was not aware that there was a gun in the home.

YOUNG: Honored as team member of the year

soon had a darkroom for the student newspaper set up.

"Be on the Team" matches area religious officials with high school students. The organization started with three area churches and has increased to eight in four years.

Those participating: St. Peters Catholic Church, Antioch United Methodist Church, Antioch Evangelical Free Church, St. Marks Lutheran Church, Prince of Peace Catholic Church, St. Gilberts Catholic Church and Riverwoods Community Church. The adult members of the community were recruited to actively support the students and coaches during the basketball season. They become a "teammate" to an Sequoit. The teammate writes letters of encouragement, prays for their safety, attends games and hosts the team member and their parents at a recognition dinner. This effort involves more than 80 players, coaches and managers on the boys and girls teams, Gillespie said.

"The kids needed to get some positive encouragement and the churches organized to help support the youth," Gillespie said. "I want to keep the relationship going."

"Be on the Team is very popular with all the kids. The attitude has been excellent. They are always there — they sit in the same group at home games and a lot of times they show up individually to support the kids," said Dave Woods, ACHS girls basketball coach.

Young said he has had good relationships with all of Antioch's coaches over the years. He even gets along well with officials, who also receive the bubble gum.

"Steve is just an institution around here. I cannot remember a time when he was not part of the Antioch sports programs. He has braved rainstorms, mud, cold and game delays and long trips. It is the little things you remember — the smile and the candy," said ACHS softball and former football coach Steve Wapon.

Young described the most proudful moments in ACHS sports history as the 1980-81 boys basketball team which advanced to the state quarterfinals. Also, the 1985 football team which advanced to the state semifinals.

Those gathered for the dinner heard from Jayne Albright Dietrle, head coach of University of Wisconsin-Madison. She has her coaching roots at the University of Tennessee under Pat Head Summit's direction, University of Cincinnati and Northern Illinois. At NIU, she was head coach for 10 years, with four NCAA tournament appearances. The Badgers were in the first round NCAA tourney this spring.

"The goal is always to win 20 games and win the Big Ten. The biggest challenge about the Big Ten is you never had a night off - all opponents are tough," she added.

A North Carolina native, she told the teens gathered of the importance of always having hope and faith in Jesus Christ. She is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. She told of how her faith helped her overcome serious illness.

"FCA is extremely important in my life," she said.

Hope is something Steve Young has always had plenty of when it comes to his Sequoits.

MIGRATE: First graders team up with high schoolers

Each of Gunther's students was assigned to each of Scott's students.

"They just kind of took charge," Scott said of his biology students. "They absolutely clicked like magic."

The Oakland students learned how to use the computer for migration studies. They made a picture and a data chart. They went back to the classroom from the computer lab and plotted new points on the map to see where the wildlife had been and where it was going.

"That's what made it real to them," Scott said.

Gunther said, "I was amazed at how much they retained on these animals."

"I think this was beneficial to both groups," she said.

Scott said, "I wish we could do more of that. It's not that hard to do."

"There's a lot of imagination in this," he said.

ACHS to present 'Kilroy was Here'

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Antioch Community High School students will present four performances of "Kilroy was Here!" this weekend.

It's a play with music, singing, dancing, comedy and drama.

"It revolves around a U.S.O. Club in Brooklyn in 1942," said Director Jenny Sliker. "The young woman in charge of the U.S.O. Club has been asked to watch out for spies."

"They are trying to catch a group of spies out to sink ships," she said. "The whole plot basically comes to a climax at the weekly radio broadcast at the U.S.O. The finale is a patriotic salute to all the Armed Forces."

U.S.O. are the initials for United Service Organizations. It was founded in 1941. The purpose of the U.S.O. Club was to provide the atmosphere of a home away from home for military personnel on the move.

"I think the students have really put in a lot of hard work," Sliker said. There are 36 performers in this production. "The musical numbers are Andrews Sisters-type harmony or jitterbug dancing."

ACHS student Amanda Gannon performs as Ruth Taylor, the woman in charge of the U.S.O.

ACHS student Rob Lafferty plays Joe Kilroy, a soldier who likes to draw.

Gladys Brooks is a shipyard worker. Her role is played by students Esther Scheurer and Nicole Domanchuk.

Performances started Thursday evening.

The Friday, April 24 evening performance is 7:30 p.m. On Saturday, April 25 there are performances at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. On Sunday, April 26 there is a last performance at 5:30 p.m.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students. Groups of 10 or more may call 847-395-1421, ext. 867, to arrange for a group discount for seats.

"Kilroy was Here!" was written by Tim Kelly with lyrics and music by Bill Francoeur.

Native's foresight averts disaster in Nashville

Twin tornadoes that went through Nashville, Tennessee ripped the roof off Centennial Surgical Center where Craig Cermak works. He attended St. Peter's School and Antioch Community High School. He served as a paramedic in Antioch for a few years. Now he is a Critical Care Registered Nurse at the surgical center.

"He developed the whole evacuation plan and disaster plan for the surgical center," said Linda Bucar, his mother. Two weeks before the tornadoes struck, he encouraged the surgical center to discuss the plan and disaster procedures. One issue for the surgical center is what to do with patients who are in the middle of surgery when a disaster strikes.

"Two weeks before the tornadoes, they did this," Bucar said. "When it hit, everyone was prepared. They knew what to do to evacuate and what to do with the patients."

It worked well and lives were saved as a result of the planning and the drills. Cermak is married to Keica and they have three daughters.

The 11th annual "Student Art Show" at Antioch Community High School is sponsored by the Antioch Woman's Club May 1 and 2. Students from the high school, Antioch Upper Grade School, Peter J. Palombi School, Grass Lake School, and Emmons Grade School will have exhibits. The reception Friday night is from 7 to 8:30 p.m. On Saturday, the program is from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The program includes demonstrations of art forms and music. The Club will present ribbons and scholarships for prizes.

Village giving away trees for Arbor Day

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Antioch families may obtain five free Austrian Pine tree seedlings at the Antioch April 25 Arbor Day celebration.

Free seedlings are available to those people who register to receive them or who are among the first 125 families to request them at the village's annual planting program.

The free 14 to 22-inch seedlings will be distributed at the William E. Brook Memorial Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center between 10 a.m. and noon at Orchard and Skidmore Streets.

Antioch is recognized as a Tree City USA by the National Arbor Day Foundation. In an Arbor Day Proclamation, Mayor Marilyn J. Shineflug said, "I urge all citizens to plant trees to gladden the hearts and promote the well-being of present and future generations.

"It is the seventh time the village has received this national recognition," Shineflug said.

The village tree program has three major outreach activities, according to Bud Newton, co-chair of the Antioch Arbor Day Committee. Al Little also serves as co-chair of the committee.

Other members include Village Arborist Joe Huber, Steve Smouse, Marilyn Shineflug, Dick Olsen, Tom Dvorak, and Joyce Olsen.

There is a tree distribution to children in the community, ceremonial plantings at the Brook memorial sanctuary, and plantings at parks in Antioch.

"We focus on the children," said Newton. There is an attempt to have community leaders work with children to plant and care for trees.

"Laurie Stahl at the parks department is quarter-backing the free-tree program," he said.

"We have dove-tailed with the National Junior Honor Society at Antioch Upper Grade School. They have a need to do community service projects," he said. "We usually get (help from) 20 National Junior Honor Society students and teacher sponsors."

The Antioch Rotary Club, Antioch Lions Club, the village public works department, the village board, and the Mayor also work on the Arbor day activities with children.

"We use Saturday so as not to disrupt the school day," Newton said.

"We will be the first activity at the Brooks memorial center," he said. This year the village will plant 30 Austrian Pines at the Orchard and Skidmore Street entrance to the wetland sanctuary and entertainment center. According to Newton, the trees will be three to five feet tall in order to stagger the height and create a more natural looking planting.

The program starts at 9 a.m. Children are encouraged to bring shovels. The public works department will provide wheel barrows. The large Austrian Pines will be planted at the entrance area, and free seedlings will be distributed to those who registered for them and to the first 125 families who request them.

At 11:30 a.m. there will be soda and hot dogs for the participants. Newton said that Leta Wick at Pizza Plus, 476 West North Avenue, contributes the hot dogs for the children.

Also, a special T-shirt will be given away. The shirt was designed by Marc Mallen at Innovative Screen Printing, 919 Main Street, and Newton.

One of the long term village programs related to tree planting is undertaken with the Antioch Parks and Recreation Department. During October and November, the Board determines planting needs in parks. These needs are passed to the Antioch Arbor Day Committee.

"We've had some landscapers draw plans," Newton said. The plans guide decisions for major projects that take multiple years to complete.

On the west side of Williams Park, there is an Ash tree planting that was set out on a landscape plan and planted by the committee. "The plan is completed there, now," Newton said.

Centennial Park also was a committee project. "As you drive into Centennial Park, on your left, you'll see a row of evergreen and crab apples," he said. There is also a buffer of Austrian Pines on the right."

"A community's tree planting program is a living memorial to the citizens' concern for the quality of life," said Dick Olsen, a committee member. "The trees we plant and care for today will cool our cities, fight pollution, conserve energy, and give wildlife a home for years to come."

"I enjoy working with village officials and residents to help plant and preserve trees on village property," said Tom Dvorak, a committee member.

Newton gave the public works department employees considerable credit for their contributions to the program. "They water for us in the summer," he said. It assures the survival of the trees and the full benefit of the labor to plant them. He said that that is crucial.

"It's been a good thing, a positive thing," Newton said of Arbor Day. "I hope that in future years, kids will come back and say, 'Hey, I planted those.'"

Laurie Stahl, Director of Antioch Parks and Recreation and Arbor Day Co-Coordinator (along with Co-Coordinator Bud Newton who is not pictured), and Claude LeMere, Director of Community Development, look forward to Arbor Day activities to take place this Saturday, April 25. — Photo by Lynn Gunnarson Dahlstrom.

Sheriff nets two in gambling raid

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Two Antioch residents have been charged with syndicated gambling by Cook County Sheriff's Police and the Lake County Sheriff's Office.

Lake County Sergeant Louis Kadlec said that the raid occurred on April 17 at approximately 5:40 p.m. and resulted in the arrest of Fred Vermeyen, 54, and Lane Vermeyen, 31, in an apartment at 295 JoAnna Court.

They have been released on bond.

Seized in the raid were gambling records, cellular telephones, and a computer that revealed bet totals in excess of $60,000. No money was seized in the raid.

It appeared to Cook and Lake County Sheriffs that bets were taken on baseball and basketball games.

The Vermeyens appeared to be engaged in a local gambling operation. The cellular telephones were used because they eliminate the possibility of taps on the telephone.

Fred Vermeyen previously was arrested in November of 1995 at the same address on gambling charges.

A charge of syndicated gambling requires that five bets or more that total over $2,000 are involved.

Arrests pending in car burglary string

Three men, in jail since April 2, are believed to be connected with a string of car burglaries in Grayslake, Round Lake, Fox Lake and Lake Villa.

The three men, of Waukegan, are currently being held in McHenry County Jail on car burglary charges there.

In Grayslake, they're suspected of stealing over $5,000 worth of property for burglaries which took place March 18 and 20.

Fox Lake has already prepared warrants for arrest of the men, once their released from McHenry.

According to Grayslake Police Detective Doug Hess, the men were in possession of an item traced to a March 22 Grayslake burglary, the evening they were arrested. They were also in possession of property reported stolen from Fox Lake, the same evening of their arrest.

Lake County authorities aren't releasing names of the suspects until arrests are made. —by Elizabeth Eaken

ANTIOCH

Out-of-town DUIs

Antioch Police Officers stopped two out-of-town drivers and charged them with DUI offenses.

Antioch Police stopped Jeffrey R. Underhill, 27, of Bristol, Wis., on April 14 at 2:47 a.m. at Cedarwood Drive and Hickory Lane in a gray 1989 Ford Mustang. He was charged with DUI.

Police also stopped Richard K. Miller, 60, of Kenosha, Wis., on April 16 at 12:46 a.m. traveling east bound on North Avenue at Route 83 in a blue 1986 Nissan. He was charged with DUI.

No valid license

Antioch Police Officers stopped Santos Escobar, 24, Waukegan, on April 15 at 11:35 a.m. traveling east bound on North Avenue and Gary's Drive in a brown 1985 Oldsmobile. He was charged with not having a valid drivers license, speeding, and operating an uninsured vehicle. Escobar was released on a personal recognizance bond pending a court date of May 27 at 9 a.m. in Grayslake.

Cannabis possession

Antioch Police Officers stopped Kelly E. Milam, 33, of Streamwood, Ill., on April 16 at 1:53 p.m. traveling north bound on Route 83 south of Route 173 in a black 1991 Ford. Milam was charge with speeding, driving on a suspended drivers license, and unlawful possession of cannabis. Milam was released on bail pending a court date of May 27 at 9 a.m. in Grayslake.

Cannabis, zero tolerance

Antioch Police Officers stopped Calum G. Cruickshank, 19, of Antioch, on April 19 at 2:12 a.m. traveling west bound on Route 173 at McMillian Road in a black 1991 Ford. Cruickshank was charged with improper lane use, unlawful consumption of alcohol by a minor, possession of cannabis, and possession of a cannabis pipe. Cruickshank was released on a recognizance bond pending a court date of May 27 at 9 a.m. in Grayslake.

Warrant arrest, cannabis possession

Antioch Police Officers stopped Ralph E. Light, 26, of Antioch, on April 17 at 6:17 p.m. walking too close to the fog line in the 300 block of West Route 173. He was charged with possession of cannabis. He posted proper bond pending a court date of May 27 at 9 a.m. in Grayslake. He also was charged on an active warrant for failure to appear from the McHenry County Sheriffs Office. On that charge he posted bond pending a court date of May 12 in Woodstock, Ill.

LINDENHURST

Out-of-town DUI

Lindenhurst Police Officers found Robert R. Charbonneau, 54, of Oakville, Ontario, Canada, on April 14 at 11:40 p.m. on Route 132 east of the village limits. He had pulled over to the side of the road in his Budget rental automobile to rest. He was charged with parking where prohibited and DUI-alcohol. He was released on $300 bond pending a court date of May 19 in Waukegan.

Warrant Arrest

Lindenhurst Police officers stopped Martin R. Beckman, 22, of Wildwood, on April 18 at 2:40 a.m. at Route 45 and Haven in a black Chevrolet Blazer. He was charged with driving while his license was suspended and with improper lane use. He was also picked-up on a warrant issued by the Northbrook Police Department for failure to appear in court on a driving while suspended arrest there. Beckman was released on bond pending a court date of May 6 at 9 a.m. in Grayslake.

LAKE VILLA

Possession of Marijuana

A Lake Villa police officer arrested Erik C. Backe, age 19, of Antioch on possession of marijuana and improper use of registration on April 12th at 6:39 p.m.

The officer was following the subject's purple and black Chrysler Lebaron Coupe northbound on Route 83. The officer checked the plates and found they were registered to a different vehicle.

He stopped the vehicle and received permission to search it. While he was doing so the suspect acted suspicious. He was asked to remove his hands from his pockets. When he did a gold pipe allegedly containing substance residue and a black lighter fell to the ground. The suspect turned over a bag containing a green leafy substance which later tested positive for marijuana. The subject was released on an I bond pending a court date of May 13th in Grayslake.

Man in a hurry

At approximately 8:02 p.m. an officer on routine patrol noticed a 1993 gray Ford pickup run a stop sign without even slowing at Breeze Dr. and Windance. The truck proceeded to run another stop sign at Windance and Savanna Springs.

Jacek R. Koziol, 28, of Grayslake told officers he was in a hurry that day. He was cited for failure to stop as well as driving on a suspended license.

Safety measures installed on Demon ride

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

The Demon roller coaster ride is expected to be back in business at Six Flags Great America this weekend.

An incident which left 23 people stranded upside down for approximately two hours April 19 closed the ride.

A further inspection has since been completed. A guide wheel, which runs on the inside of the track, separated from the rear axle assembly on the last car of the roller coaster train, allowing the rear axle to misalign and separate from the train. The finding was determined by park, state amusement park officials and an independent consultant.

According to findings, the misalignment slowed the train to the point that it stopped in the second loop of the ride when the undercarriage of the rear car came to rest on the track structure.

This occurred when an adjusting nut on the guide wheel loosened, allowing the wheel to disengage from the axle.

"As a result of our findings, an additional safety mechanism has been added to the rear gear wheel assembly," park spokesperson Connie Costello said in a prepared release.

"The theme park has an excellent record compared to other parks. We were having our budget meeting Saturday and there was a lot of anxiety. The Demon is my favorite ride," said Verna Rocheleau, Gurnee trustee and theme park enthusiast.

She said the ride under normal conditions is so fast, riders do not feel a sense of being upside down.

"We are always concerned with safety and why we constantly monitor it," she said.

"The safety of our guests is our highest priority. We regret the inconvenience and anxiety this incident caused the riders and their families. We commend them for their patience and calmness during the evacuation. In 22 years of operation, Six Flags Great America has given 33 million Demon rides alone, without such an incident.

Chamber sponsoring community gang awareness seminar

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Chamber officials will sponsor a gang awareness seminar to which the public is invited on Thursday, April 30 at 7:30 a.m.

The breakfast seminar will be at Antioch Community High School in the cafeteria.

"Our guest speaker will be the Antioch Police Department talking about gang awareness," said Barbara Porch, president of the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

"Since this is such an important topic to so many people, I would like to open this to all the communities. I'd like to see people attend from Antioch, Lake Villa, Lindenhurst, Salem, Trevor, and anywhere," she said. "There is no charge."

"There will be a continental breakfast served," she said. "We would like people, if possible, to call the Chamber at 395-2233 if they will be attending. That way we can have enough food."

"I think this is a really important topic for so many parents," Porch said. This will be the April meeting of the Chamber.

Antioch resident faces Glenview rape charge

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

A 20-year-old Antioch resident allegedly attempted to rape a 14-year old school girl in Glenview, Ill. on Thursday, April 16 after she returned home from school.

James W. Moralis, 20, of Antioch, was arrested by the Glenview Police Department and charged with home invasion and with attempted criminal sexual assault.

Moralis was positively identified in a line-up conducted on Friday afternoon, April 17.

He is in Cook County Jail on $800,000 bond.

Moralis was reported by the Glenview Police Department to live at 316 Bridgewood Drive in Antioch.

Moralis allegedly forcibly entered a single family home in Glenview and attempted an attack on the victim. She was alone at home after school. Moralis is reported to have fled the home when the young victim's father returned home at approximately 3:35 p.m.

A partial license plate number was given to police by a person who saw the car in the area.

The next day, a Glenview police officer on patrol found a car that matched the description provided to them parked at the Glenview Terrace Nursing Home. Moralis had worked at the home a short time but is no longer employed there. The residential facility is about two decades old and provides general health care.

Antioch Republicans elect Mattson president

KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Antioch Republican Club members met April 15 to elect officers, plan future programs, and arrange for a cookout in May.

Len Mattson was elected President on a unanimous ballot for all officers. Vice-president John Ruffin, Second Vice-president Ralph Gussarson, Treasurer JoAnn Osmond, Sergeant-at-Arms Mike Mueller, and Secretary Lillian Golonka were also elected.

Judge John Phillips administered the oath of office for the new officers.

The Antioch Republican Club will host a series of public meetings during the year to inform the public about Republicans and about political issues important to the public. Members discussed several possible topics for programs, including educational planning, land use and development planning, the court systems, and the Fox Waterway Agency.

The next meeting of the Antioch Republican Club will be Wednesday, May 20 at 6:30 p.m. The meeting will be a cookout at the home of JoAnn and Tim Osmond.

Library volunteers improve service

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Library volunteers perform hours of service to improve the quality of patron service and of the use of the library.

Lake Villa Public Library District has two volunteers that have worked every week at the library since 1995. They are the type of volunteers that National Volunteer Week, April 19 to 25, seeks to recognize for their contributions.

Carol Denman, of Lindenhurst, and Lois Schultz, of Antioch, help the library process audio visual materials, shelve books, clean book covers in the children's collection, process book withdrawals, and do filing. They do the work that needs to be done to keep patrons quickly served.

"These are very competent and dedicated ladies," said Marilyn Ward, of the library. "They do a whole variety of things."

"I'm head of the department that gets materials ready for the patrons," Ward said. "That's a time consuming task," she said.

Ward has a group of volunteers to help her make books and media materials ready for circulation.

"I have these two people, a college student, and an Allendale student," she said. During the summer, Carmel High School students will volunteer time as will students of the National Honor Society.

"I also take community service volunteers," she said.

Denman and Schultz have been consistently strong contributors to Ward's department. She said, "They both telephoned and said they'd like to volunteer." For such a long term of service, it was a simple way to get started.

Denman works on Monday and Schultz works on Tuesday and Thursday. "Neither had worked in a library before," Ward said. Now they are very familiar with the requirements of library work.

How important are volunteers to the Library? "Very important," she said. "You never have as much staff as you have needs."

"In one month, I had 120 volunteer hours," she said of one particularly strong month. Generally she receives about half that amount of volunteer service time.

Schultz: Finds volunteerism rewarding

Denman: Has lived in area 20 years

Carol Denman has always used a library, so it was not a foreign place to her when she volunteered to work in one. "I just like the atmosphere of the library," she said. "They were very welcoming."

"They give me a variety of things to do, and I enjoy that part of it," she said.

Denman has lived in Lindenhurst for 20 years. "I've been in the area all of my life, and I enjoy the small town atmosphere."

She has done volunteer work elsewhere. "I was a volunteer in my church," she said. "I did volunteer at Condell Medical Center. And grandchildren. That's volunteer, too."

Ward said that the importance of her volunteers also is recognized annually by the library itself. "They are honored each year at the staff recognition dinner," she said.

Antioch Police host June golf outing

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Antioch Police Association and Federation of Police will sponsor their 11th Annual Golf Outing on Wednesday, June 3 at the Antioch Country Club.

Shotgun starts begin at 12:30 p.m.

Tickets for Golf and dinner are $50, and for dinner only are $18. They may be purchased from Antioch police officers Ron Roth, Jim Hession, Charles Watkins, and Jim Ruth.

This is the only fund-raising activity undertaking by the police during the year according to Chief of Police Charles Watkins. "The money we make we put back into the community," said Watkins.

Prior to tee-time, there will be a lunch available for hot dogs and brats and beverages. Golfers on the course will be eligible to in a variety of prizes. There are door prizes and raffles.

Dinner will be at Maravela's, Fox Lake, and served family style. At 6 p.m. there will be cocktails and the meal at 7 p.m.

The police associations are not-for-profit. The money that is raised through the golf outing is used to support many youth organizations such as cub and boy scout troops, a fishing derby, and the Antioch Youth Baseball program. Other expenses, such a funeral flowers are also covered from this fund-raising effort.

Scouts host Sunday spaghetti dinner at Grass Lake School

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Eat spaghetti and maybe keep the house from burning down.

This is the enticing possibility of the Sunday afternoon spaghetti dinner sponsored by Boy Scout Troop 180 at Grass Lake School from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

This is one of three fund-raising events the troop does to raise money for their scouting activities.

"We're also going to have two car washes," said Paula Maniscalco, committee chairperson. "At all three of these events, we will be selling fire extinguishers for the home, car, or boat."

"It is the right one for boats," she said.

The extinguishers are $16.

The spaghetti dinner will include a silent auction with merchandise donated by local merchants. It includes items such as a Garfield Cat® to stick on the window to a set of shots for a cat or dog from a Fox Lake veterinarian.

"What they are specifically fund raising for is Camp MaKaJaWan for two weeks," she said. The camp is in northern Wisconsin.

They leave July 12. "This is the first year we're going two weeks," she said.

"We need to build a second trailer," she said. "We need five new tents, desperately."

The two car washes are expected to generate additional money for troop needs. "Body Craft has graciously donated their two lots," she said. Body Craft is one mile east of Route 83.

Cars will be washed from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on May 3 and on May 23. Trucks and vans are $5 and cars are $3. This includes a wash and dry.

The 20-member troop is active in more ways than camping. In mid-April the troop went to Bong Recreation Area. "They are learning search and rescue," Maniscalco said.

The training required the troop to find four victims. "They will carry one victim to the road so help can get to him," she said. "It's a good quarter mile."

Troop members also have watched high altitude rocket launches at the recreation area.

No-wake, restriction in effect on Chain

The Fox Waterway Agency announced that as of Wednesday, April 22, a flood, no-wake restriction is in effect for the Fox River between Pistakee Lake and the Stratton Lock and Dam in McHenry due to high water levels. The Fox River between the McHenry Dam and Algonquin Dam has been under a flood, no-wake restriction since April 16.

All boaters using the Fox River between Pistakee Lake and the Algonquin Dam must operate at no wake speed. The no-wake restriction is expected to be in effect for one week.

No-wake speed is that speed at which a boat does not create a wake large enough to rock an adjacent boat at rest. No-wake speed in generally a speed of 3 to 5 miles per hour.

Additionally, boaters are advised to be on the lookout for floating debris due to the high water levels.

For more information, please contact the Fox Waterway at 587-8590.

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Lynn Pringle

Okay, all you Corner Office-With-A-View bosses out there – this is fair warning – if you haven't been deluged by Hallmark yet, I am here to tell you that next Wednesday is Secretaries Day.

That means that efficient person who sits in that outer office, that has saved your hide on more than one occasion, deserves more than a nod of your head upon your entrance into the office that morning. None of those gruff directives such as "where's my coffee," "pickup my dry cleaning and get my car washed while you are out" kind of stuff. Oh no.

Wednesday morning you should present your pulse to the outside world with Einstein Bagels and a variety of cream cheeses and espressos. A mid-morning snack of chocolate covered strawberries and bon bons. Lunch should be at the fanciest restuarant in town, an extensive wine list is a plus, linen napkins are a must. An afternoon snack of nothing less than Eli's cheesecake and cappuccino, followed by some fine liqueurs.

You head honchos have no idea how nice you should be to the person out there making your phone calls, sending your e-mails and drafting up those multi-million dollar contracts. It wouldn't be hard for Ms. My-Boss-Is-An-Idiot to do a little creative writing on her own once your backside is comfortably placed in that fancy leather chair behind that oversized mahogany desk.

So don't try playing off Secretaries Day with Dunkin' Donuts, pizza and a Snickers bar or two. You may be surprised at what little extra tidbit of personal information is passed on to your competitors.

There is a very well-known advertising agency that used to give all of its secretaries a red geranium to commemorate the day. It was in a small clay pot with no ribbon, no card, and usually, no blooms. Not that they wanted to seem ungrateful, but some of the most loyal and dedicated employees felt it was a real slap in the face. Their unhappy rumblings reached the higher echelons of the company and the following year, everyone got pink geraniums. Doesn't surprise a person one bit that this particular agency lost its largest client the following year to its biggest competitor.

So to all you bosses out there who were half thinking of having your secretary order and pick up their own secretary bouquet at the local florist – you might want to have your wife do it. Unless, of course, she's your secretary – then you are on your own or she may end up with your biggest competitor as well!

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Three cheers for our own Steve Young

Steve Young was quite the shocked award recipient Saturday night. He was presented with a community service award by the Antioch "Be on the Team" program. The program matches basketball players with adult mentors. It includes eight Antioch area churches.

My favorite Young story?

"When I was going to be late for a basketball game once, the girls got together and said they would not play until I came. The refs gave them 15 minutes extra in warm-ups," said Young.

Young is a 47-year veteran of the Lake County sports trenches, taking photos for Lakeland Newspapers and the Sequoits.

It was an honor well deserved.

My 12 years of service are a blip compared to Young, who richly deserved the accolade.

It was also good to hear from Jane Albright-Dietrle. The women's basketball coach at University of Wisconsin — Madison spoke of the importance of hope. She noted how her team opened the 17,000 seat Kohl Center with a close loss to Iowa. The team later upset Illinois en route to an NCAA tournament spot on the same court.

Diertle, of course, is also known as the coach who watch Northern Illinois University girls basketball grow from a few hundred fans a game to several thousand.

Congratulations to five wrestlers from Taverine Middle School in Ingleside. The group concluded their season at the state meet.

Rudy Reyes, a seventh grader, won the 85 pound title, capping off three straight years of state qualifying and his second title overall.

"It is his family and his club, whom he competes with before here," said coach Tony Zens.

Rudy's older brother Robert wrestles for Grant and is also a product of the Predators Wrestling Club.

Other qualifiers: Daniel Dennis, fifth grader, placed sixth at 65 pounds; Mark Troemel, sixth grader, at 70 pounds; Neal Granno, eighth grade.

The Ingleside middle school had a 20-person wrestling squad.

"It has been a community thing," said Zens.

Kudos also to the Lake County Adaptive Sports basketball team. It concluded its season with a third-place finish at Hobart, ID tournament. The Rolling Thunder played in the tournament which featured an eight and one-half foot basket, placing behind a Rockford team and a host squad.

The team is coached by Kelly Loth of Gurnee and John Lawson of McHenry.

Players include: Amie Stanton of Gurnee; D.J. Bluma of Menomonee Falls, Wis.; Rebeckah Stevens of Long Grove; Robert Danaj of Lindenhurst; Scott Fowler of Zion; Brad Bowen of Winnetka; Laura Terry of Racine and Mason Schwab of Glendale.

LCAS is sponsored in cooperation with the Special Recreation Assn. of Central Lake County.

Antioch girl track squad takes home crown, earns 5 champions

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

Antioch High's girls track and field team showed its depth of talent at the Crystal Lake Central Invite, running away with the team title.

The Sequoits had five first-place finishes, four runner-up and six thirds en route to the win. In several events, more than one Antioch athlete placed.

In the long jump, the points piled up as Julie Sytszma was second in 15.2; Cindy Aikus third in 14.9; sophomore Becky Clark fourth in 14.4.

"They all jumped pretty well on Friday," said ACHS coach Kathy Kelly.

Champions included Linnea Rothermel in the 3,200 meters in 12:39.4.

"But there was no competition for her. She is capable of doing better," said Kelly.

Clark had what Kelly called an outstanding meet. She won the 100 meter hurdles in 17.2. Teammate Jamie Jorgenson was fourth.

She also anchored the winning 800 meter relay team. Aikus, Jenny Wierzbicki and Heather McDonald combined for a 15:7.5.

"Anything we put her in, she did well. We will have to find out what is best for him," said Kelly of Clark.

The 400 meter relay, of the same order, also won.

Also contributing for ACHS were: Megan Mitchell and Kristin Jensen in the 800 meters in fourth and fifth place.

Aikus, a junior, won the triple jump in 32:7.25.

Kara Henneberry won in the 1,600 meter run in 5:51.3 with Rothermel third.

Junior Aikus had a busy day, with a title in the triple jump.

In the first NSC dual, the Sequoits lost to Zion-Benton but beat North Chicago.

The Sequoits know their depth will be tested at the Waukegan Invite April 24.

Gooch, Ipsen honored by 'Be on the Team'

Perhaps one of the more inspirational returns to sports came when Antioch's Dave Gooch returned to the lineup for a North Suburban Conference game with Libertyville.

It was a festive occasion, honoring former coach Roger Andrews.

Gooch was tabbed a pre-season force in the North Suburban Conference quarterback picture before a knee injury sidelined him for the fall season.

"It was very important for me to comeback. I wanted to come back for one game, but I cameback for four," Gooch said.

Gooch now is back in track for ACHS, except he does not run hurdles as he used to.

Gooch was recognized as the player-of-the-year by the "Be on the Team" community program. Lisa Ipsen was the girls' winner.

"Dave showed what a team member is all about," said ACHS coach Jeff Dresser.

The Sequoits won a regional tournament and went on to the sectional semifinals before losing to Waukegan in overtime.

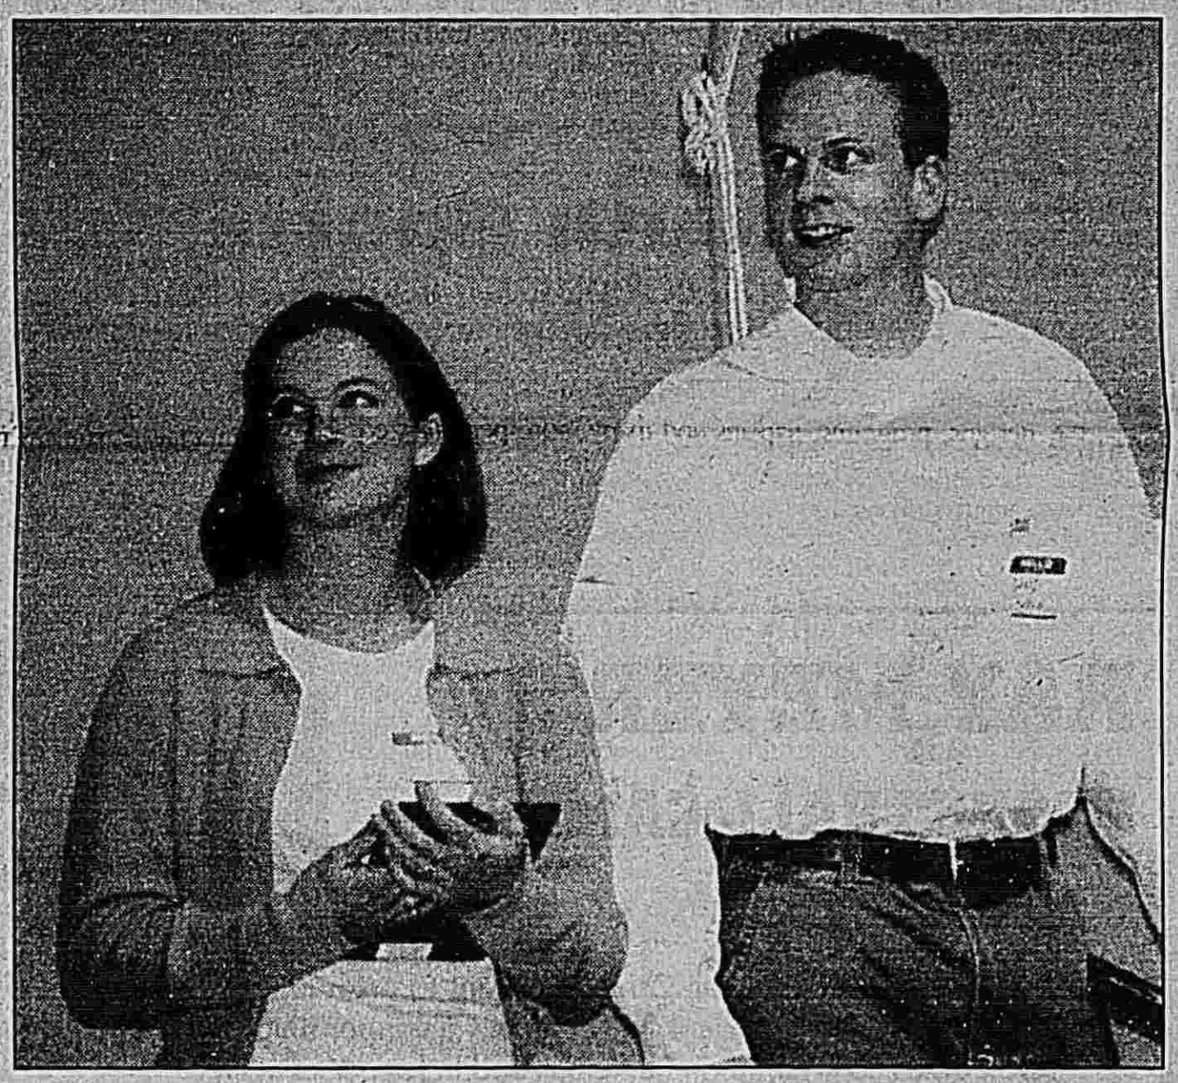

Ipsen said she was surprised with the honor.

"The team meant a lot to me. I saw them on weekends off the court. I'm glad I'm going to College of Lake County next year to play volleyball and basketball," said Ipsen.

Ipsen has been playing basketball since age 6. At CLC, she will be accompanied by ACHS teammates Aja Brown and Nicole Langley.

Also honored were sophomore team members Margaret Fischer and Luke Denoma.

"Be on the Team" matches area church leaders with athletes. Participating churches are: Prince of Peace, Lake Villa United Methodist, St. Peters, Antioch Evangelical Free Church, St. Mark's Lutheran Church, St. Gilberts, Riverwoods Community and United Methodist Church of Antioch.

Lancers gearing up to defend Skyway crown

College of Lake County men's tennis team entered Skyway Conference's tournament on a strong roll against league teams.

A 7-0 win over Waubonsee marked the fourth straight shutout of a conference foe.

The first and third singles players, Jayson Roberts and Adam Brushaber, have six-match winning streaks into the league meet. The Lancers host the Skyway meet April 25.

"Jayson is playing very confidently now. He is playing well in the back of the court and his volley and serves have improved," said CLC coach Richard Watson.

Brushaber has a seven-match win streak at No. 3 while Roberts has won six straight at No. 1.

Watson said a weight training program has helped Roberts.

The Lancers No. 2 singles player, Terry Sharp, has also show improvement.

CLC is 8-4 overall heading into the conference meet. Four league wins gave the Lancers one-half of the conference crown, meaning they needed at least a second-place finish for a share.

"But we want to win it outright. Elgin will be our toughest opponent. We are learning to win the close ones. We have improved tremendously since the start of the year," said Watson.

Watson and his son Richard combine coaching duties for CLC tennis.

The women's team is 25-0 and trying to get some more meets before the national tournament May 8-16 in Tucson, Ariz.

"Kim Villiger has practiced the most. Our top two singles players, Sarah Lesinski and Ericka Offerdahl, are great in the backcourt," said Watson.

The coach hopes for a top 10 finish in the 30-team meet.

"A lot of teams have all foreign players," said Watson. "A lot of our chances could depend on the draw. We could be anywhere from third to 10th."

Watson expects no lineup changes, meaning Melissa Marthouse of Grayslake at No. 4; Jenny Meyer at No. 3 singles and Kristin Schuester at No. 6 singles.

Last week's stats: Hit two home runs in Antioch's 9-7 win over Rockford Harlem.

Scopel's glove, bat key Antioch

One win was two weeks in the making, while another took the full seven innings.

Both contests were memorable for Antioch High's softball team, which reached the .500 level last week. The Sequoits beat Carmel 13-7. They then edged Round Lake 5-4 before a 15-5 win.

Jenny Minor offense was anything but minor in the rain continued win over Carmel. Her three-run homer sparked the Sequoits to eight runs in the final two at-bats.

Dana Spandel had a two-run triple in more extra-base hitting.

Also key to the offense was Carrie Hagglund. She had three singles, scored two runs on two walks and an RBI.

"Kristen Scopel did a real credible job pitching. All six of their runs came April 13 when it was very rainy and muddy. She gave up no runs and allowed no hits Friday," said ACHS coach Steve Wapon.

On defense, the infield play of Shannah Jaburek and Nicole Langley stood out, said Wapon.

"This was a big game for us because we were able to comeback. This team is young, but it is pretty spunky and did not quit," said Wapon.

Kelly Kotlarz suffered the loss on the mound for Carmel, winless in three non-conference games.

"You might say that Antioch supplied the lightening in the sixth and seventh innings," said CHS coach Paul Maloney.

ACHS also had the advantage of the home field, as the site was changed from Carmel.

The Sequoits pulled out a 5-4 win over Round Lake in game one Saturday.

Abbey Thomas, a freshman, started on the mound with Scopel getting the win in three innings of work.

"She faced 13 batters and allowed no runs, no hits and struck out three," said Wapon.

Scopel came up with the key hit, a two-out double in the seventh. Jaburek and Langley were on base.

On defense, Kristen Lynch has been playing a steady shortstop.

In the second game, Jaburek was 3 for 4 with 2 runs scored and 2 RBIs. Freshman Jamie Knuth plays sound defensive outfield and had three walks, a stolen base and two runs scored.

Spandet, one of three catchers employed by Antioch, also had a good game.

"We are playing sound defense and the pitching is starting to come around. Generally, that means you will be in games," said Wapon.

With Antioch still looking for its first outdoor practice due to soggy Polley Field, the North Suburban Conference season starts. Antioch is at Zion-Benton April 23.

April 24 is a make-up date for rainouts.

Offense a plus for ACHS JV squad

Hitting is a strength of Antioch High's junior varsity softball team in the early going.

Freshman Jamie Karuth has reached base 9 of 11 times with four hits and five walks.

She plays center field and first base.

Kristen Curren, a sophomore, is 4 of 9 in on base percentage.

Megan Flood, a freshman, is 5 of 10.

Jessica Wells, a sophomore, is 3 of 5 and Nina Merlo is 4 of 7.

Curren and Abbey Thomas, a freshman, have been doing most of the pitching for ACHS.

Antioch has dropped its first three games.

"We have a young lineup, but we are getting better," said ACHS JV coach Steve Haenchen.

Antioch is at Round Lake April 18 for a doubleheader.

RAY MEYER'S BASKETBALL CAMP

Campers learn through demonstration and participation.

At Ray Meyer's Basketball Camp, we want to provide every boy with a memorable, fun-loving experience and give every boy an opportunity to develop his talents to the best of his ability, both in basketball and in his personal life.

Each morning is devoted to individual skills through demonstration and participation. Each camper works in individual stations with the coaches. The focus is on both offensive and defensive techniques.

Competition is the daily afternoon routine. Teams are arranged according to age and skill. Each team plays a minimum of two games per afternoon. All of these competitions are recorded and awards are given accordingly on the last camp day.

Confidence main benefit as ACHS tennis wins

Antioch High welcomed three other teams to its own boys tennis meet.

The three left with a case of homecooking by the Sequoits. Antioch won the team title by two points over Rockford East, 18-16.

North Shore Country Day and Elgin St. Edward also competed.

"Now that the kids have tasted victory, they want more dual meets," said Antioch coach Bryan Plinske.

J.J. Edwards continued his power game at No. 1 singles for Antioch. He split two matches competed in straight sets and won a match by default.

Andrew Dohrmann had similar fate at No. 2 singles. His highlight was outlasting Elgin St. Edward 7-6 (7-2), 6-2.

"Dohrmann struggled with his serves. But he got off to a late start due to basketball season," said Plinske.

In doubles the No. 1 tandem of Erik Lips and Kevin Ward won all three matches. They outlasted Rockford East 4-6, 7-6 (7-5), 8-6 in a marathon.

"Their desire to win just showed. It came down to who wanted it more," said Plinske.

Senior Jeremy Jones and freshman Jason Love won all three matches, their toughest test a three-setter against St. Ewardds with a 6-4, 2-6, 7-5 win. Jones is in his second season of tennis.

"Serving well was key to their success," said Plinske.

Also earning a sweep was the No. 3 doubles team of Sebastian Andino and Steve Arendas.

ACHS battles Warren April 23 in North Suburban Conference meet play before a meet at Waukegan with Round Lake and Zion-Benton April 25.

Ground-ball outs is specialty for Antioch pitcher Richter

The Antioch High infielders know they will be kept on their toes if Karl Richter is on the mound.

"What we ask from Karl is to have few walks and throw a lot of ground-ball outs. He has good control," said ACHS coach Paul Petty.

Richter, a senior, did his part in a 9-7 Antioch win over Rockford Harlem. He pitched six innings with the Sequoits leading 9-1, struck out two, gave up three walks in a six-hitter. Dan Shaugnassy was credited with the save.

Antioch then made it a sweep of Harlem with a 15-2 win in game two. Ryan Clutts pitched five innings and got the win.

"The defense has been pretty good in the infield with Pat Straub at third, Chris Groth at shortstop, George Fuchs at second base and Brett McCullom or Tom Baird at first," said Petty.

Antioch went long ball against Harlem's pitching, with six home runs on the day. Groth, sophomore Jason Schuler, Reggie Hughes (two), and McCullom (two) had dingers.

"The kids hit the ball pretty well," said Petty.

The Sequoits did suffer their second loss of the season with a 12-5 loss at Barrington.

"Our pitching was not what we hoped for. Barrington is a very good team," said Petty.

ACHS (9-2) was hoping to get the North Suburban Conference play going this week against Zion-Benton until the Monday rains came.

"We are off to a good start. We have made some mistakes, but we have been able to play through them," said Petty.

Olympian Spangler to speak at Races

There is still time to register for the 18th Annual Lake County Races, scheduled for Sunday, April 26. Final registration will take place at the Sheraton North Shore, 933 Skokie Blvd., Northbrook, on Friday, April 24 from 3 p.m.-8 p.m. and on Saturday, April 25 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on a space available basis only. A Sports Exposition will also be offered.

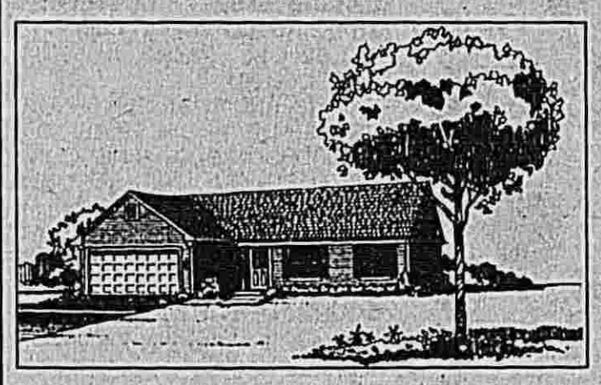

U.S. Olympian Jenny Spangler will be speaking to runners on April 25 at noon in the Sheraton North Shore's auditorium on "Training Tips and Race Recovery." Spangler, who competed in the 1996 Olympic Marathon, finished first in the 1996 U.S. Olympic Trials Marathon with a time of 2:29:54.

The 18th Annual Lake County Races will feature running and walking events of various distances including the Jenny Spangler Trustmark Marathon (26.2 miles), Moore Half-Marathon (13.1 miles), Provena St. Therese Medical Center 10K Run (6.2 miles) the Tenneco Fun Run & Walk (3.5 miles) and Special Olympic Relays. The events feature a point-to-point scenic course, reaching as far north as Zion and as far south as Highland Park.

Proceeds from the event benefit OMNI Youth Services and The Lake County Haven. It's not too late to volunteer! If you are interested in becoming a volunteer or for entry information, call the Lake County Races Office at 847-266-RACE today.

Rams softball offense finds gaps, gains win

Grayslake High softball player Bri Richter had a bad case of "atom-ball" in her first several outings.

The Rams hitter found her stride in a three-hit game as the Rams earned a split with Crystal Lake South in a 13-5 win.

"The hits were dropping in for her. She was hitting the ball hard," said Rams coach Phil Mandralla.

The Rams on offense also had multiple hit games from Allison Losik, Bobbie Rivelli and Sara Davis.

Actually, the Rams offense is a varied one as the team is off to a 2-2 start in its new league affiliation, the Fox Valley Conference.

"Laura Mendralla, Losik, Carrie Hovic are all hitting the ball well and our defense is good and getting better. Pitching needs to eliminate walks, and that has killed us. The difference of the defense between this year and last year is like night and day," said Mendralla.

Losik struck out two South batters in the win and walked three.

The Rams outhit the Gators 15-7. A nine-run fifth inning put the game away for Grayslake. Kendra Gallaugher and Losik had doubles.

The other win in league play was a 2-1 victory over Crystal Lake Central. That game marked the Rams' first FVC game ever.

Losik got the win on the mound. At the plate, she had a triple, and drove in Tiffany Michalowski with the winning run in the last at-bat.

The Rams have a game scheduled each day this week, capped off at Prairie Ridge April 25.

"The good thing is you get a chance to play more people. With only three games a week, it has been tough to get everyone in. I believe if you work hard, you should be rewarded. High school players only have a few years with their careers. If they just sit, then they will lose interest and not come out," said Mendralla.

TIP OF THE WEEK

The fundamental swing

Rules of the stance | Rules of the swing | Rotation on axis | Bat-lag | Follow-through

Hitting a baseball or fastpitch softball is the hardest thing to do in all sports. A batter can go up to the plate 10 times and only get 3 hits (averaging 300), and still be considered one of the best. That means a hitter needs to know that failing is a part of being a good hitter. To create a fundamental explosive swing a hitter needs five basic rules: Balance, Windup, rotation on axis, bat lag, and a good follow-through. First the swing has to start somewhere and that is called the stance, it helps the hitter get ready for the pitch.

Rules of the stance

1. The feet are wider than shoulders width apart, toes pointing straight, and they are in line with one another.
2. Point the index fingers to line up the middle knuckles, that will give the hitter more leverage and power (wrap the index fingers when lined up).
3. Bend knees slightly.
4. Bend the waist slightly.
5. Lift the hands to the top of the strike zone (top of the letters or armpits). Elbows down, relaxed!
6. Weight needs to be slightly on back leg. About 60% back - 40% front
7. Last, all good hitters have a slow movement in their stance. This relaxes the bodies muscles while waiting for the pitch.

A hitter needs to make a slow smooth transition from the stance to a quick aggressive but controlled swing, while keeping the rules together every time.

Rules of the swing:

1. Balance: From the start of the swing and throughout the rest of the swing a hitter needs to stay balanced to be successful. It helps the hitter to be consistent. (Tip of the week: April 10)
2. Wind up: From the stance a hitter needs to wind up to generate more power like a pitcher, this starts about the time the pitcher releases the ball. The wind up has two steps a hitter must do; first is the stride, the front foot moves slow, soft and straight (4-6 inches) towards the pitcher. Second, about the same time of the stride, only the hands and arms move slightly back for added power. Note: The front foot toes never point at the pitcher during any part of the swing and when a hitter strides the head does not move staying on an axis..
3. Rotation on axis: A hitter needs to swing on an imaginary vertical line (axis) around which the body rotates on during the swing. While the body rotates, the back foot pivots with the heel pointing up and the shoelaces pointing towards pitcher. At this time, the front foot should be flat on the ground and the front knee should be straight. This helps open up the hips and body generating more energy and power
4. Bat lag: The hands and the bat are the last part of the swing before contact. This creates a short compact explosive swing with more leverage and power for the hitter.
5. Follow-through: After hitting the ball, the hitters hands finishes between the waist and up near the shoulders.

This is a sequential break down of the fundamental swing, it needs to be put together. Hitters need to practice everyday and it is not practice that makes perfect, it's perfect practice makes perfect. The pro's make it look so easy but they swing about 100 times a day and they are the best in the game. To help hitters swing fundamentally they need to start with slow practice swings working the proper muscle memory. Once the hitter can follow the rules of the swing, hitters can swing faster and faster!

Next week's tip: Getting ready for the game.

Rams prove ready for FVC challenge

If the first week of play is any indication, Grayslake could be a factor in its new baseball conference.

The Rams are off to a 3-0 start in the Fox Valley Conference, thanks to wins over Crystal Lake schools. The bats were working overtime in a 9-6 win over Crystal Lake Central, 16-4 over Crystal Lake South and 5-0 over South the next day.

Keith Hall supplied the extra-base hit power, delivering a two-run homer against the Tigers in the Rams' league debut. He has three round trippers last week.

"Keith is a very consistent, productive player. He works hard and helps out," said Rams coach Sean Ferrell.

Hall plays right field and third base and hits sixth in the lineup.

Alex Frank pitched the shutout in the home win over the Gators on Saturday.

"He maintained his poise," said Ferrell.

Dave Weber hit a two-run homer and Frank helped the offense with an RBI. The Rams did not pull away until a four-run sixth inning as Frank had worked out of earlier threats by CL South. He struck out five batters.

"We like the lineup we have. We made some changes and we are more aggressive at the plate. Our pitching also has gotten better and we are not walking as many batters as we used to. We are just tougher mentally. With the conference games, you can see the intensity rise," said Ferrell.

The defense has also picked up its play. Shortstop Matt Ellison, the football quarterback, is getting more confident with each game. A switch which sent Joe Kane to third base and Eric Spaw to catcher has worked out, said Ferrell.

The FVC pits teams in home- and away back-to-back situations.

"It is a challenge because you have to have the pitching. But you are not facing the other team's No. 1 guy all the time," said Ferrell.

The Rams (4-4 overall) are at Prairie Ridge April 25, the other new team in the FVC.

Libertyville, Antioch high school students study flying mammals as means of controlling insects

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

For the historically maligned mammal, bat, some people in Lake County have been extending open arms.

The result is: more bats. Bat conservation in Lake County is receiving help from committed Libertyville and Antioch high school students, the help of the Lake County Forest Preserve, and the Land Conservancy of Lake County.

Many people may not be enthusiastic about such good news.

Bye.

Pioneering work by Dr. Merlin D. Tuttle and Bat Conservation International (BCI), and his astonishing and beautiful photographs of bats, have reached Lake County high school students. Some of them are now working to increase further the little brown bat population of Lake County. It is work that builds upon successful efforts by the Illinois Department of Natural Resources that began in 1984.

The largest nursery colony of Myotis lucifugus— little brown bats— known in the State of Illinois is located in a barn at the Volo Bog State Natural Area. In 1984, there were 805 little brown bats in the colony. A deteriorating roof affected the quality of the location for bat brood-raising. The bats checked-out and in 1985 only 150 checked-in. It was a colony in decline.

With Non-game Wildlife Check-off Funds, taxpayers in the State of Illinois and IDNR were able to rebuild a bat-friendly barn roof. It worked well, and the colony was able to increase in size every year to the present time.

According to Stacey Miller, the State Naturalist at the Volo Bog, there were 1770 brown bats in the barn in 1996.

"I have no idea where it will top off," Miller told the annual meeting of the Land Conservancy of Lake County earlier this year when she spoke about the bats at the bog. It was one of many such talks she gives throughout the year,

Her presentation of slides and information was an eye-opener for those who have feared bats. For many people, everything they know about bats is wrong. Her litany of these facts confronts such myths:

Some bats have two-foot wingspans.

Bats are biologically closer to people than they are to mice.

Bats can live 30 years.

Caves and trees offer shelter for bats.

"They can see. They can see as well as we can," Miller said.

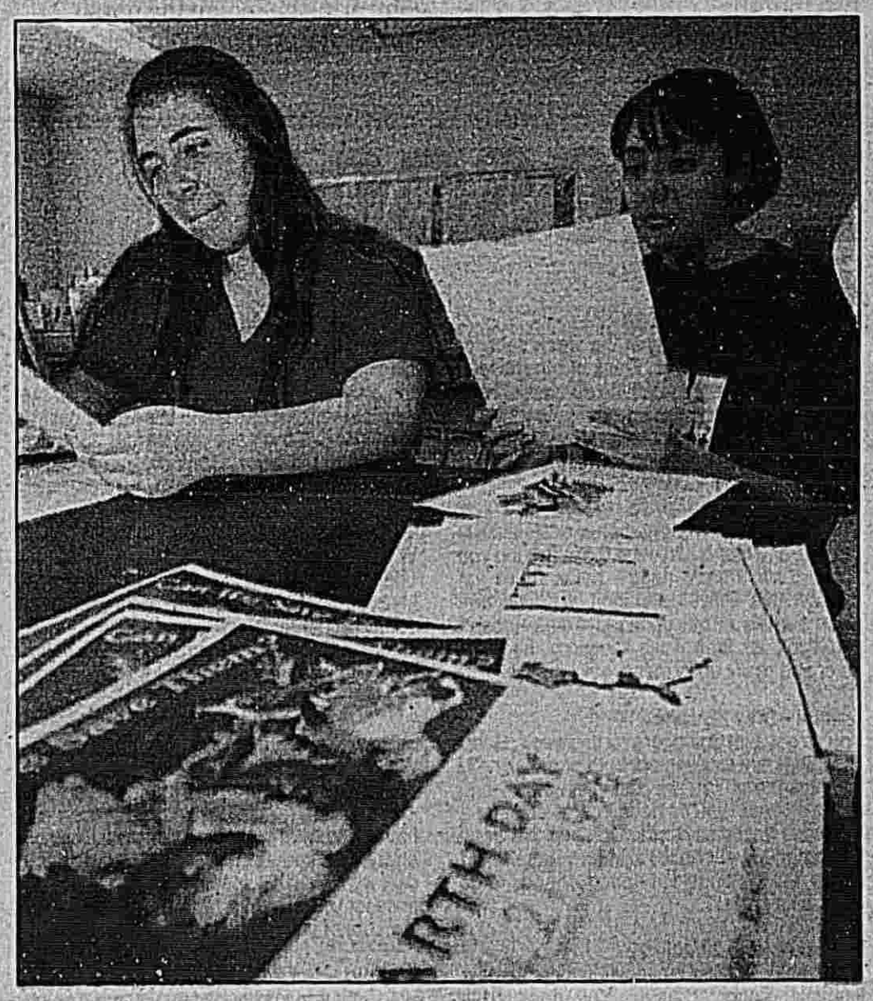

Bats can consume 600 mosquitoes an hour and are the most important control of night-flying insect populations.

Miller said that bats occupy the same ecological niche as birds, except they occupy it at night.

There are over 1,000 species of bats. "They still discover new species every once in a while," Miller said.

"They do not get stuck in your hair," she said (but, they may brush

BCI works to educate public on bats

Bat Conservation International (BCI) is recognized as the leader in conservation and educational initiatives that protect bats and their habitats. Efforts by BCI have resulted in protective legislation for bats and cooperative projects with federal and state agencies to secure some of the most significant bat populations. In addition, BCI's educational endeavors have reached millions worldwide.

Bats play key roles in maintaining the balance of nature and the health of human economies. Worldwide, they are primary predators of vast numbers of insect pests that fly at night, and others pollinate flowers and disperse seeds from rain forests to deserts. Some are so essential that without them, many other animal and plant species may die out, threatening entire systems of life. Yet despite their importance, bats are among the world's least appreciated and most endangered animals.

If people would like to learn more about these animals and how to help save them, they can join Bat Conservation International. Members of BCI will learn of the vast diversity of bat species through the magazine BATS, have opportunities to participate in eco-tours and workshops, receive discounts on catalogue items, and gain the satisfaction of seeing how contributions are making a difference. # Learning shouldn't end with summer!

PARENT'S PLACE

Sherri Singer, Psy.D.

Dear Dr. Singer,
My child has learning problems and I'd like to keep him working somehow over the summer. We do not have him enrolled in any summer school or other educational program. Can you recommend some things we can do at home to keep his mind on top of things for next year? M.M.

Dear M.M.,

I have some suggestions, but realize that your child will probably not want to spend a minute of the summer doing them. In my mind, this really shouldn't be that much of a concern, because if these things are part of your rules, they need to be respected like any other rules. I say this only because I want you to be prepared for the "guff," you may get!

I heard an interesting piece of information from one of my clients that I think is important for this type of thing. She told me that she heard another professional say that children lose about a month of school learning over the summer and that it takes an average of two months for them to get back up to speed in the fall. I cannot document the accuracy of this quote, but it does make sense to me. I am an advocate of summer home learning. Here are some suggestions that have worked well for my clients:

1.) If you feel that your child's problem is something more than you can handle by yourself, or a problem that causes a lot of frustration for the child, have the child tested first to be sure that you are not mounting up more frustration. Once that is done and you have knowledge of what is o.k. to use over the summer, you can go ahead with the other suggestions. If you would like more information on this testing, you can call me.

2.) If you have a computer, go out and get some structured (last year and next year grade) software packages in areas like math, reading, spelling, science, writing, etc. If you go to a place like Best Buy, or Egghead Software, you can usually find a lot of those kinds of programs.

Set up a structured schedule during the summer. For example, you may require two hours per day on a different program each day. You might have weekly requirements set up. You might make it goal oriented. For example, if your child does all of the weekly requirements adequately, you might reward him on Friday with a Blockbuster Gift Certificate for Friday night. Incidentally, the reward is not a bribe, it is a goal met for hard work and effort. If you have a problem with that type of thinking, you really need to re-evaluate your thoughts about this. Motivation works for all of us. It's also a big part of the society you are training your child to live in.

If you do not have a computer, there are books available like this as well. Check at a place like Barnes and Noble or Border's Book stores.

3.) If your child reads at an adequate level, you might put together a grade-appropriate book list for him or her to choose from. Have the child choose a book for each two weeks of summer and require that one or two hours a day be spent reading. You might have the child do some sort of a small report, either written or oral for you.

4.) Be sure that if you use the above suggestions, you don't go over three hours a day and try to split them up. For example, have the child read 1 hour in the morning and then have the child go outside to play or do something non-academic. Later on, have the child do an hour on the computer or with one of the subject books and then a break and then another hour. Teaching a child about breaks and not burning out is just as important as teaching the child about working all year around.

5.) Summer is a terrific time to accelerate learning skills. The Pace Plus Program that I run does this very well. It helps kids to do everything related to school better. I need to mention though, last year a lot of people waited until school was out and then began to inundate me with calls requesting the program for over the summer. If you are thinking about doing this program over the summer, it is best to call and begin to reserve your space now. I take two new kids every month.

Unlike many programs, I do all the training myself and your child doesn't see anyone else. Obviously, that creates some time constraints. During the summer I book up in the blink of an eye. Best to reserve early if it is something you are interested in. If you do find your child to have problems in either the emotional, behavioral or learning area, give me a call and I can help you get those areas taken care of in a quick way.

These suggestions are actually good for kids who are doing well in school and kids who aren't. It's good to keep those little brains frosty and alert over the summer so that when school begins, kids are ready to launch right back into it and they may pick more up from the beginning.

BATS: Tiny creatures, often misunderstood, are studied

it as they swoop for mosquitoes).

Miller said that bats are not rabies carriers. "When bats contract rabies, they get sick and die."

Myotis lucifugus has a body of 3 and a half inches and a wingspan of 10 inches. They weigh a quarter to a third of an ounce. Miller noted that you can mail one with a 32 cent stamp.

A quarter ounce brown bat can live for 12 years. According to Miller, one reason they survive so long is that they spend half of their life sleeping. Also, they slow down their metabolism.

Bats come out of hibernation in April. Bat sexual reproduction starts in the fall, but ovulation is in the spring. Spring is when bats get pregnant. It helps them survive winter hibernation since mothers do not have to grow young through the winter. Gestation is two months.

Miller told the Land Conservancy of Lake County of a trip she made to Texas to learn and experience bat habitat. At dusk, she stood at the entrance to a cave where bats had spent the day hanging-in. She told the group that she stood in a steady stream of bats exiting the cave and not a single bat bumped into her.

Bob Benson works for Bat Conservation International in Austin, Texas. "(The little brown bat) is considered the most common and abundant in the United States," he said. "It's also among the most studied among all mammals."

One reason it is so well studied is that bat echolocation is the most sophisticated known to man. The military studies bats a lot.

Establishing a bat colony is not an easy task for people. Miller spoke of building bat houses and the ways to make them successful. Smearing guano on the rough wood of the shelter can help attract them. A quarter-mile proximity to water is helpful. The height of the home from the ground is important— bats can fall 15 feet before becoming airborne. An east or south facing exposure is best.

"It is as much an art as it is a science," Miller said.

Students team-up to attract, study bats

Sharon E. Milroy and Nadia Karlinsky are co-presidents of LEAF— Libertyville Environmental Action Force. Milroy said, "It's a club in the high school, open to the students."

Milroy also serves as one of the directors of the Land Conservancy of Lake County.

The 40 member LEAF club is involved with recycling projects, workdays of prairie restoration, and educational programs. There are 15 or 20 members with Meelynn Wong serving as treasurer and Cara Sawyer serving as secretary. "On workdays, (membership) can increase. It depends on what is going on."

One thing going on is work with Antioch Community High School Students on a bat project.

"We just worked on getting a pamphlet typed up to be distributed pretty soon," Milroy said. It is about Myotis lucifugus in general with facts about bats. It is something students at both schools hope to distribute throughout Lake County. The pamphlet is to be done with the Lake County Land Conservancy and other contributors she said.

The two schools' students got connected through the efforts of Bill Rockar, who also is with the land conservancy group. "He's been a tremendous advisor and has helped us at the school," Milroy said.

"I'm excited we're taking this up with LEAF and the land conservancy," Milroy said of the bat education project. "I think it will be a great way to join together students and adults in the community."

ACHS has an Environmental Club. It has two faculty advisors, Mary Ellen Johnson and Bob Staudt.

"We've only got about 10 people. We're a small but very active group," Johnson said.

"We do clean-ups, take part in seminars with other high schools, and we are thinking of recycling printer ink-jet cartridges," Johnson said. They do a roadside clean-up and wetland clean-up. There are trips to botanic gardens, behind-the-scene tours at the Milwaukee Zoo, the Ryerson Conservation Area in Deerfield, the beach/dune complexes, and the Lake County DesPlaines River Watershed Project in Wadsworth. They will take a trip to the International Crane Foundation in Baraboo, Wisconsin near Devil's Lake State Park.

"The big thing we do is the Earth Day ceremonies," she said.

"Right now we're in the planning stages," she said of the club's bat project. They intend to build bat houses to help control mosquitoes. Antioch Rotary Club and Antioch Township will be involved with the project also.

The club prepared a brochure with Libertyville High School students on the benefits of bat houses. "We set the nucleus for the market," she said. "The next school year, we'll get into construction."

There are students in the ACHS Ecology class who have already built bat houses, however. "Several of them have produced a bat house on their own," she said. "They did that as their portfolio project."

She too notes the importance of Bill Rockar to bringing the two high schools together on common projects. "He has been a guardian angel for high school environmental clubs," she said. "I'm really grateful for what he has done. The kids have seen that this is a lifelong attitude."

County Forest Preserve maintains bat houses

These are not the only activities in Lake County to help little brown bats. Mark Kiser of Bat Conservation International has been working with the Lake County Forest Preserve District to protect bat habitat.

Andy Kimmel, director of environmental education and public affairs at the district, said that there are many bat boxes in the county's preserves and that they are monitored by volunteers.

One particular nursery colony has developed, on its own, at the Lakewood Forest Preserve in a picnic shelter. "We had a sizable population of little brown bats and some big brown bats," Kimmel said. "It was a breeding colony."

There are approximately 100 Myotis lucifugus and 25 big brown bats in the colony.

The district has worked with Kiser to minimize the conflicts between daytime shelter use by people and nighttime shelter use by bats. Two proposals have been prepared for district evaluation, each of which will permit the bats to continue to live in the preserve.

"We're happy to have them here," Kimmel said.

One proposal the district is considering is to construct a new bat shelter that would be an improved habitat. A second is to reuse the picnic shelter as an educational site and build a new shelter. No final decision has been made.

Regardless of how individuals may feel about bats, their importance to the ecology of Lake County has been recognized. Young students are taking advantage of county resources to learn about Myotis lucifugus and to help create more habitat for bats.

The work of Miller at Volo Bog with the colony there, the students in Libertyville and Antioch, the work of the Lake County Forest Preserve have all contributed to opening people's eyes to the benefits of bats.

"Early this year, I did not know we had bats here," student Milroy said. Now she is helping them to attract them here and raise their pups.

HOROSCOPE

Aries – March 21/April 20
A touchy situation early in the week calls for tact on your part, Aries. Think of others' feelings before saying something sarcastic. They don't deserve to be the brunt of your jokes. A close friend takes you out later in the week. Let your hair down, and enjoy yourself.

Taurus – April 21/May 21
You are solid as a rock when a crisis arises, Taurus, and that is just what those around you need. Your steady nature helps them get through this difficult situation. A loved one gives you his or her opinion — even though you didn't ask for it. Take it in stride, because he or she really does mean well.

Gemini – May 22/June 21
You've got a lot going for you this week, Gemini. Things are working out both professionally and personally. You are getting ahead at work, and the person you've been interested in for a long time finally says yes. Don't let this good fortune go to your head. Just be yourself, and things will continue full speed ahead. Virgo plays a key role.

Cancer – June 22/July 22
Don't make the first move when it comes to a financial matter, Cancer. You don't have enough information to make a sound decision. Do some investigating before you decide. A close friend confronts you about a problem you're having. Don't shut him or her out; he or she just wants to help.

Leo – July 23/August 23
A friend in need turns to you early in the week. Do what you can to help him or her. You are the only one he or she can talk to. Don't let your personal affairs get in the way of being a loyal friend. A business venture falls through at the end of the week. Don't overreact. Calmly work to salvage what you can.

Virgo – Aug 24/Sept 22
While you've always been the dependable one, now you have to depend on someone else. You need a loved one's help with a personal problem. Don't worry; he or she will come through for you. Let him or her know how much you appreciate the help. Libra plays a key role.

Libra – Sept 23/Oct 23
While you're not one to take orders, you really don't have any choice early in the week. You aren't in control of a business situation and have to do what someone else says. Don't get angry; you know you aren't fully equipped to deal with this. That special someone has a surprise for you. However, don't accept it until you are sure of your feelings.

Scorpio – Oct 24/Nov 22
Hold your ego in check when you meet an obnoxious stranger early in the week, Scorpio. By keeping quiet, you will show how much character and class you really have. A loved one asks a favor of you. Don't do it — it is sure to get you into a lot of trouble. Taurus plays a role.

Sagittarius – Nov 23/Dec 21
Don't let a bitter business associate spoil your good mood. You have a lot going for you; don't let anyone get you down. That special someone finally agrees to go out with you. Don't show off on the date. Be yourself, and you're sure to win his or her heart. Aquarius is involved.

Capricorn – Dec 22/Jan 20
Don't go overboard when you are planning a special event this week, Capricorn. Think simple and elegant. That's the way to impress people. A close friend offers to help you with a personal problem. Say yes. You can't do it all by yourself. Remember, he or she has your best interest at heart.

Aquarius – Jan 21/Feb 18
Don't let yourself get into a rut, Aquarius. Show your loved ones that you are full of surprises. Do something out of character. Not only will it impress others, but it can make you feel better too. That special someone is getting restless with your relationship. Show him or her how much you really care. It can help rekindle that flame.

Pisces – Feb 19/March 20
You feel as if the world is passing you by, Pisces. Don't let it. Take some initiative, and make things happen. Go after what you want. Your efforts will intrigue those around you. A good friend tells you something you really don't want to hear. Listen to him or her.

Family game, puzzle night teaches fun alternative to TV

CHECK IT OUT!

An evening of classic, unusual, and world wide games can be learned and played by families at the educational center, Teacher Place & Parent Resources. The Saturday, April 25 program is from 6-9 p.m. Ages 4 to adult are invited. Games like these are active, rather than passive experiences. They are a healthy mix of entertainment, social activity, and using one's mind.

The event is during National Turn Off TV Week, giving families a fun thing to do for an entire family with many ages. Even more important is that many of these can be played again and again at home throughout the years. Playing and working together in the game format builds a family while giving practice to patience, team work, planning, strategy thinking, being a gracious winner or loser, and enjoying a universal pleasure.

The types of games will include jacks, pick-up sticks, Mastermind, Old Mill Game, Chinese checkers, Canadian Checkers, Mancala, and Yote. Puzzles are brainteasers and logic challenges such as the Soma cube, star & ring, take-aparts, and combinations; but no jig-saw puzzles.

Admission is $3 per person, all children must be with an adult. Phone reservations are suggested due to limited space. The non-profit center is located at 533 Milwaukee Ave., Burlington, Wis. Similar programs are offered for schools and groups. For more information, call (414) 763-3946.

THEATRE

'Beauty and the Beast'

"Beauty and the Beast," a play with music and dance will be presented by Classics On Stage! of Chicago through June 5. Completely realized, beautiful stage settings and lighting; gorgeous costumes; wonderful songs and dances; and a completely professional cast of Actor's Equity Association adult performers highlight this presentation from Chicago's premiere Theatre for Young Audiences production company. The production features a script by playwright Michele L. Vacca, music and songs by Alex Dilan, and choreography by Nancy Irvine.

The play takes place at the spectacular 1,400 seat Pickwick Theatre, Touhy Ave. & Northwest Highway, Park Ridge. The show days are Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 10:30 a.m., and selected Saturdays at noon. General admission tickets are $6.50, $5.50 in advance, with group rates available. Reservations are necessary.

For reservations or more information, call (773) 989-0598.

1-2-3 Imagine!

Sesame Street Live returns for a brand new show at the Rosemont Theatre in Rosemont for 10 fun-filled performances of "1-2-3...IMAGINE!" Join all of your favorite Sesame Street Live friends as they explore their imaginations in this 90-minute Broadway-style musical for kids. Sing and dance along as Oscar vacations on the trashy beaches of Club Mud, Elmo skips to the rhythm of the rainforest and Ernie captains the high seas. It's a story of adventure that teaches the children they can be anyone, do anything or go anywhere by using their imaginations.

The show runs Friday, April 24, 10:30 a.m. & 7 p.m.; Saturday, April 25, 10:30 a.m., 2 & 5:30 p.m.; and Sunday, April 26, 1 & 4:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the Rosemont Theatre box office and all Ticketmaster locations. Tickets are $12 and $9.50, with limited VIP seats for $20. For more information, call the theatre at 671-5100, or Ticketmaster at (312) 559-1212.

Julie Ann Emery stars as Gypsy Rose Lee, and Alene Robertson, right, is Mama Rose in "Gypsy" at the Marriott Lincolnshire Theatre.

'Gypsy'

Gypsy is back! Often praised as one of Broadway's greatest triumphs, Gypsy is as gutsy and timeless s it was on opening night in 1959. Based on Gypsy Rose Lee's memoirs, Gypsy traces the life of Mama Rose, a bold, larger-than-life "stage-mother" who is determined to make vaudeville stars out of her two daughters, June and Louise. Gypsy features music by Jule Style, lyrics by Stephen Sondheim and book by Arthur Laurents.

Alene Robertson reprises her role as Mame Rose, and Julie Ann Emery stars as her daughter Louise, better known as Gypsy Rose Lee.

The play is at the Marriott Lincolnshire Theatre and runs through May 31. Performances are Wednesdays at 2 and 8 p.m.; Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p.m.; Saturdays at 5 and 8:30 p.m.; and Sundays at 2:30 and 7 p.m. Tickets are $33; senior citizens and students receive a $5 discount on Wednesdays and Sundays. Reservations can be made by calling the Marriott Lincolnshire Theatre box office at 634-0200. Marriott Lincolnshire Theatre is located at 10 Marriott Drive, Lincolnshire.

'Yankees' auditions

Did you ever wonder what happened when the Scarecrow was left in charge of the land of Oz? This story is the second book in the L. Frank Baum Oz series and is presented by a professional company of adult actors. All seats are reserved and priced at $5 in advance and $6 at the door. To purchase tickets, call 291-2367. Box office hours are Mon.-Fri., 10 a.m.-6 p.m.

ART

'Art of Spring' auction

The Palette & Chisel will hold its annual "Art of Spring" Auction. Oil, watercolor, black and white, and sculptures by members, former members, and special guests of the Palette & Chisel Academy of Fine Arts will be on display through May 3 for public viewing. Some of the best paintings and sculptures on the Chicago art market will be on display. Figurative, landscape, and still life art are all available for immediate sale. Live demonstrations of rendering techniques will take place during the reception, May 3, from noon to 3 p.m. The Palette & Chisel Academy of Fine Arts, 1012 N. Dearborn, Chicago, is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to supporting the visual arts both through exhibitions and educational programs in the Chicago area.

For more information, call (312) 642-4400.

Art exhibit

Celebrate Black Heritage Month at the National Vietnam Veterans Art Museum, 1801 S. Indiana Ave., Chicago, featuring the current artwork of three of the museum's African-American artists: Farris Parker, Ulysses Marshall and William Myles. View over 40 works of non-Vietnam art in oils, acrylics and watercolors. The exhibit runs through April 30. For more information, call (312) 326-0270.

Arts Festival coming

The Grayslake Arts Festival Committee is actively soliciting artists to participate in the 1998 Grayslake Arts Festival. The Festival, located in downtown Grayslake, will be held on Saturday, June 12, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., with a rain date of Sunday, June 13. All types of media will be considered, including pottery, sculpture, watercolor, oil, weaving and other cloth art, woodwork, jewelry, photography and any other type of work. Applicants must submit three slides, photographs, or other representations of their work, along with a $30 application fee (Grayslake residents $15) which will be returned if the application is not accepted by the Festival judging committee. Musicians and other entertainers are also being sought. For more information, call 548-2858 or 550-1855.

Artists sought

FamilyCare of Illinois, a 139-year-old social service agency, is seeking traditional artisans to participate in The Old Fashioned Strawberry Festival's juried art fair. Submissions may be sent to FamilyCare of Illinois, 70 East Lake Street, Suite 900. Interested artisans should submit two slides of their work and a completed entry form. Entry forms can be obtained by calling FamilyCare of Illinois at (312) 658-6228.

The Old Fashioned Strawberry Festival will be held on June 19 and 20 on Lake Street. The Festival will celebrate FamilyCare's 139-year tradition of strengthening families and will feature art, music and a variety of strawberry treats. For more information about this family-oriented festival, call FamilyCare of Illinois at (312) 658-6228.

The Ever Changing Las Vegas Strip

by JIM WARNKEN
President, North Star Travel

I was just waking up as my plane made its final approach for landing. The Statue of Liberty and the familiar New York skyline came into view.

Wait a minute, I'm supposed to be in Las Vegas!

I knew of the New York New York hotel in Las Vegas. But until you see it, you really can't believe it. There it was. A scaled down (but not by much) copy of Manhattan.

The New York New York is only one of the many new spectacular mega-resorts that are changing the look of the Las Vegas strip.

The strip always was breathtaking by night. Now even a day time drive down the strip will also leave you in awe.

Next to the New York New York is the European style Monte Carlo, home to Master Magician, Lance Burton. I personally like the swimming pools at the Monte Carlo. There's a river where you can float under waterfalls. If that's not enough, you can try the wave pool. I also highly recommend the breakfast buffet at the Monte Carlo.

Just north of the Monte Carlo, where the Dunns once stood, is the Beliagio which is expected to open October of this year. At $1.3 billion, the Beliagio will be the most expensive resort ever built in Las Vegas. Since the Beliagio is named for a resort town on the shores of Lake Como in Italy, the owner (Steve Wynn of the Mirage Resorts) is including an 11-acre lake to this Las Vegas namesake.

Across the street construction continues on The Paris. When it opens next spring it will feature a 50-story Eiffel Tower as well as a copy of the Arc de Triomphe, the Paris Opera House and the Louvre.

Further north, where the Sands used to be an Italian-theme resort called The Venetian will also open next spring. This will be a luxury "all-suite" resort. They have finished a preview area with actual finished rooms you can walk through. Quite impressive.

The Landmark was imploded last year, but nothing has taken its place yet. The Aladdin is closed and rumor has it, it too will be "imploded" very soon.

Some of Jim's "must sees" include the Shops at Caesars Forum, the free Pirate Show at Treasure Island and a trip to the top of the Stratosphere and M&M World next to MGM.

Choral concert

The Choir of Lake County and the CLC Singers, under the direction of Laurel Ann Kaiser, will present a spring concert at 4 p.m. on April 26 in the Performing Arts Building Mainstage Theatre at the College of Lake County's Grayslake Campus. The concert will feature a varied program of choral selections and opera favorites. Admission is free and open to the public. For more information, call 543-2040.

DANCE

Dancenter registration

Dancenter North of Libertyville has opened registration for their Summer Session, which will run from June 8 through July 25. On the schedule will be a variety of camps and workshops with two three-week Summer Dance Camps for girls entering first through fifth grades and a Pre-School Dance Camp for 4- and 5-year-olds. Sissy DePrima's Summer Stock will be open to boys and girls entering second through eighth grade who enjoy singing and musical productions, but need no experience.

Also on the schedule are the Ballet Intensive Workshop, the Junior Ballet Workshop, The Ultimate Jazz Forum which will study all facets of jazz and include classes with Joel Hall as well as other experts in the field. The Great Drama Workshop for budding thespians meets on Mondays and a Cheerleading and Pom-Pon Workshop will meet on Wednesdays. Chicago's Especially Tap Company will also be in residence at Dancenter North on Thursday evenings for a special Tap Master Series.

The Summer Session will also include a complete schedule of regular classes in ballet, tap, jazz, drama and musical theatre for pre-schoolers, children, teens and adults. Registration can be made by visiting the Dancenter North office at 540 N. Milwaukee in downtown Libertyville, or by mail, fax or phone. For more information, call 367-7970.

SINGLES

Singles Dance set

There will be a singles dance at the Barn of Barrington1415 S. Barrington Rd., in Barrington (1/2 mile north of Dundee Rd.). on Saturday, April 25, from 8 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Admission of $5 includes free buffet and music provided by a DJ. For more information, call (630) 372-1109.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Soap stars to visit Six Flags

To celebrate General Hospital's 35th Anniversary, John York (Mac Scorpio) and Kimberly McCullough (Robin Scorpio) will appear at Six Flags Great America on Saturday, April 25 from 4 to 6 p.m. The actors will answer questions from the audience and hold an autograph session at the Farmer's Market Stage, located across from the Farmer's Market Food Court in County Fair.

York

Six Flags Great America is now open weekends with daily operating beginning Monday, May 18. For more information, call 249-1776.

Breakfast with an aardvark

The Northwest Suburban Jewish Community Center (JCC), 1250 Radcliffe Road, Buffalo Grove, invites you to join your favorite TV Aardvark for bagels on April 26 from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Bring mom, dad and the kids to the JCC on April 26. Don't forget your camera for a morning of bagels, songs and crafts with your favorite television Aardvark. Cost is $6 per child and $4 per adult for JCC members and $8 per child and $6 per adult for non-members. Children under 1 are free. Space is limited, so advance registration is a must.

For more information, call Marcy Chez at 392-7411.

Art League meets in Waukegan

On Monday, April 27, at 7 p.m., the Lake County Art League meets at the Jack Benny Center for the Arts in Waukegan. It is open to the public. Priscilla Humay will be the demonstrator.

Humay is the program director for the Chicago chapter of the Colored Pencil Society of America. One of her exciting large landscapes was chosen for the cover of a program for the Recent Works fall show at CLC this year. She is a graduate of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and becoming well known in the Chicago area. Her works have received acclaim and won many purchase awards. She also received first place at Deer Path Show in Lake Forest. Her art work was published in "The Best of Colored Pencil III, 1996." Her expertise has been recognized by corporate collections as well as gallery presentations across the country.

The acceptance of colored pencil creations is presently going through what artists in water color or pastels suffered in previous decades and generations. "We are the Rodney Dangerfield of the art world," jests Humay. One of the advantages is the simplicity of the medium. It is non-toxic, you can take breaks with no danger of spoiling the process and there is no clean-up.

The members and guests are in for a unique treat. Artists are also reminded to bring work to be judged by Humay.

Disney Animation exhibit scheduled

On Saturday, April 25, Stay Tooned Gallery will open a new exhibit entitled "The Art of Disney's 2nd Golden Age of Animation." Artworks from The Little Mermaid, Beauty and the Beast, Aladdin, Lion King, Pocahontas, The Hunchback of Notre Dame, Hercules and Disney's 1998 release "Mulan" will be on display.

The exhibit will include original hand painted production cels, one of a kind drawings, and studio serigraphs. The exhibit will premier with a lecture by Disney Supervising Animator, Mark Henn, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Stay Tooned Animation Gallery located in the Arcade, 272 E. Deerpath, in downtown Lake Forest. The exhibit will run through June 15, 1998.

For more information, call Jim or Tracy Lentz at 234-3231.

Once upon a time, the Emperor wore clothes

LIFE'S A BEAR

Donna Abear

Once upon a time, four years ago this week, I wrote my very first "Life's A Bear" column.

Back then, President Clinton's biggest problem, according to the media, was his ambitious wife, who preferred working on the nation's health care problems instead of baking cookies.

Funny how things change. Four years later, the whole Hillary/cookie/health care fiasco seems like...an excuse for a fairy tale:

THE PRESIDENT'S NEW HEALTH PLAN

Once upon a time, in a land called America where the cost of health care was skyrocketing out of control, there lived a President who so wanted to fix the health care problem that he was willing to pay the best advisors he could find to design a solution that would make his people happy. He also wanted to be known as the Franklin Delano Roosevelt of his time, and thought that a national health care plan would assure his place in history. Of course, if it failed, it might assure his place in history as a one term President, but he was willing to gamble. He got that from his mother.

And so it was that President Bill searched his kingdom far and wide for the very best qualified people to draft the health care plan. He didn't have to search any farther than his own back yard, for his wife Hillary was highly qualified. He knew this because she told him so. She promised to give President Bill the health care plan of his dreams.

Not only that, but she was so confident of her ability to deliver this grand plan, she assured him that only those who were unfit for their jobs or unpardonably stupid would be unable to see the merits of this plan. President Bill was excited now, because he knew that the Democrats held the majority in Congress and that only Republicans were unpardonably stupid.

It was a sure thing. He could relax and play his saxophone.

Hillary and a staff of thousands (or so it seemed) worked day and night, night and day, drafting a health plan for President Bill. He had made a promise to the American people that he would be able to present his health care plan by - well, "soon".

But "soon" came and went, with the health care plan unfinished.

This made President Bill a little nervous, so he jogged over to McDonald's for a Big Mac. The Big Mac didn't help, so he had a Quarter Pounder with Cheese. That didn't do it either, so he decided to get the advice of his right hand pal, Al. He knew that Al was a wise man who was fit for his job, not to mention good looking, and would surely see the merits of the plan.

And so it was that right hand pal Al met with Hillary and her staff of thousands (or so it seemed). "Here's what we have so far" said Hillary, proudly pointing to a stack of paper 5 feet tall. Seeing that huge stack of paper, Al blinked (blinking, for Al, is a major change in facial expression). He read the first few pages, which were about as exciting as one of Al's speeches, and realized that he could not see the merits of the plan. But, of course, he couldn't say so because that would mean he was unpardonably stupid.

Still, being an honest man, Al knew he had to tell President Bill the truth. So he told him only the parts that were truthful. "Bill, you would really be impressed with the amount of work they've done so far." That's what he said. What he didn't say was "you would be amazed at the huge pile of dead trees she calls a health plan." So President Bill once again relaxed, and waited for Hillary and her staff of thousands (or so it seemed) to finish the health care masterpiece.

Several more months went by, and still no health plan. Again, President Bill sent a trusted advisor to check on the plan's progress.

"Mom," said Chelsea, "how's the health plan going? Dad's getting a little worried."

"Tell your father that I don't appreciate his lack of faith. I suppose that if I were a man, this sort of question would never come up," said Hillary.

"I'm just doing my job, Mom. Chill out. Can I at least see it? Please?"

Hillary pointed at the stack of paper which now stretched from the floor to just inches below the ceiling and was held upright by two giant racks. Mumbling "It would take a village to read this thing", Chelsea stood on a ladder to read the topmost page. It made no sense at all to her. Still, not wanting to be thought stupid, she said nothing.

Upon her return, President Bill asked Chelsea for an update. "Well, princess, how is my health plan coming?"

"Dad, Mom has REALLY outdone herself this time."

"Groovy! Thanks, Princess. I feel better now," said President Bill. And he did, celebrating by getting a pizza for himself and Chelsea, and watching movies until the wee hours of the morning.

Many more months passed, until President Bill could wait no longer. Both the press and the public were clamoring to see this magnificent health plan that President Bill had promised. He issued an ultimatum to Hillary and her team that the health care plan would have to be ready in one week. She agreed.

Exactly one week later, President Bill called together his entire cabinet, along with Hillary and her staff of thousands (or so it seemed). Seated at the head of the table in the Presidential conference room, Hillary covered President Bill's eyes and said "Here comes your surprise!" as a fork lift truck was driven in with the health care plan on top of it. When President Bill opened his eyes he was ... surprised.

"This is...big. This is really ... big, people. I can't wait to read it. Well, I mean, I can wait, but I won't. Bring me Page 1."

"I'm sorry, dear. Page 1 is on the bottom. How about Page 709,204 instead?"

He agreed, and one of the staff members stood on the table to reach page 709,204, handing it to President Bill. As he read the page, he realized that it made little sense. But how could that be? Hillary herself had told him that only those who were unfit for their job or unpardonably stupid would be unable to see the merits of the plan. So he decided, what the heck, he had only read one page. He would take her word for it.

Anything was better than having to eat her cookies.

First the President called a press conference to tell them the news. Next, he presented his plan to Congress. As soon as the health plan was wheeled out onto the House floor by the Presidential fork lift, the Speaker of the House took one look at it and said, "I don't know about you, but I had tacos for lunch. Let's recess."

And the rest is history. The Congress told the President to "make a new plan, Stan", to which the President replied, "Well, I guess that means you're all either unfit for your jobs or unpardonably stupid. And besides, my name isn't Stan."

Nevertheless, they all lived happily ever after.

That is, until Paula Jones. And Monica Lewinsky. And...

(Which only goes to show you—when it comes to Presidential scandals, "cookies" aren't nearly as troublesome as "rookies".)

Vidalia Onions are back!

Three hundred thousand pounds of gourmet, jumbo, sweet Vidalia Sweet Onions from a 30-mile radius of Vidalia, Georgia, arrive for the Chicago area's Medinah Shriners' Annual fund raising Vidalia Onion Sale, Saturday, May 2.

Shriners will sell 10 pound bags for $10 each at locations in Chicago and suburbs. Area sales sites are: Fox Lake—Maravella's, Grand & Washington; Gurnee—Grand National Bank, Grand Ave. at Route 21; Vernon Hills—Wal-mart, 555 Town Line Road; Wadsworth—The Shanty, 38985 Route 41 & Wadsworth; Wauconda—Wauconda Masonic Lodge, 220 Brown St.; Waukegan—Frank's Nursery & Crafts, Grand & Green Bay Rds; and Whitmore's Shell, on Yorkhouse Rd.; and Zion—Harbor Motors, Route 173 and Sheridan Rd.

Call the Onions toll-free number at 1-888-526-8526 between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. (central time) to order and/or get site locations. Or you can check their website at www.medinah.org/onions.

Approved sales-sites, open Saturday, May 2, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., include area shopping malls or outside retail stores such as Wal-mart and Ace Hardware.

Eaten fresh, baked, broiled, grilled or microwaved, alone or in recipes, Georgia's official state vegetable brings no tears or aftertaste and is sweet.

The Vidalia onion is a good source of Vitamin C with the same natural sugar content as a Valencia orange, which is more than an apple. It is fat, cholesterol and sodium free, low in calories and high in fiber.

Shriner Onion Sales Chairman, Ronald Somsky of Bensenville states, "Although a 10 pound bag is eaten in no time at our home, many purchasers like to savor the flavor through the year. Just wrap individually in paper towels and store in the vegetable crisper of your refrigerator."

"Some people place Vidalias in knotted clean pantyhose legs and then store them in a cool place. They look strange but work beautifully and are easy to segment off as needed."

Vidalia onions are also dried or frozen for later use.

Hours: Mon. through 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mon. through Fri.; 5 to 10 p.m. on Sat., and Sunday Brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., as well as the Tapas Restaurant from 4 to 8 p.m.

Menu: Steak, seafood, meat, poultry and pasta entrees, deluxe sandwiches, as well as 59 different hot, cold, meat and seafood Tapas.

Princess Tapas Bar & Restaurant Welcomes Families

The Princess Tapas Bar, Restaurant and Banquets, located at 1290 S. Milwaukee Ave. in Libertyville, is known for its very casual dining where everyone is welcome, especially families.

Enjoying the warmth of a glowing fireplace in winter, and the scenic outdoor patio in summer, visitors to The Princess delight in trying a variety of 59 Tapas, which are little dishes of Spain and other countries, as well as a large and complete menu of delicious entrees, all at affordable prices.

Besides serving succulent salads, such as the Downtown Spinach Salad, delectable pasta, poultry, meat and seafood entrees, The Princess now has the answer to the age old question, "What shall I order — everything looks so good!"

That answer is the Tapas tradition which offers a way to sample the delights that The Princess offers. Originating in Spain, the Tapas idea has been expanded by The Princess into an international Tapas menu.

Tapas are smaller, low priced portions of the finest in culinary art, starting at $1.75 up to $5.75. The Tapas menu includes cold, or hot, meat or seafood, in servings meant for sharing, allowing you and your friends or family to try as many of a great variety of Tapas as desired.

Start with a couple different Tapas and expand your taste horizons. Tickle your taste buds with such Tapas as Filet Tornadoes, Baked Artichoke, Dates in Bacon with Plum Sauce, or Seafood Pastry Puffs. As a special added attraction, there is live entertainment in the Tapas Bar every weekend, featuring jazz, or guitar music, or Flamenco dancing. Ask about The Princess' custom party and rehearsal dinner packages.

The regular entree menu includes steaks, especially New York Strip Steak, at $9.95, fresh fish at $8.95, or simply a sandwich, maybe a special Focaccia Chicken sandwich at $5.25.

You are invited to enjoy our lunch buffet, Monday through Friday, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. for $5.95. There is a 10 percent Senior discount.

How to start a strawberry bed

GARDEN JOURNAL

Lydia Huff

Summertime always brings to mind, the taste of ripe, juicy berries. I love berries—really every variety known to man makes my mouth water! Last June, after picking oodles of berries at a local strawberry farm, I thought it would be absolutely fantastic to grow my own in my backyard. I hear tell, strawberries are one of the easiest fruit crops we home gardeners can grow. I have never grown them, so I am not speaking from experience—yet! I have decided though, to give them a whirl!

There are four types of strawberries, all are short-lived perennials, including June-bearing, everbearing, day-neutral, and alpine. June-bearers produce one large crop of berries in June for two to three weeks. Plants produce runners that result in new plants. They're ideal for the short season north. It is recommended to remove flowers the first summer; to enjoy plenty of fruit the second year.

Everbearers produce only two crops a y ear; one in June and a small crop in the fall. They do better in the south where they enjoy a long growing season. The day-neutrals produce very few runner plants, and a steady crop of medium sized fruit all summer. Remove flowers from the everbearing and day-neutral types the first six weeks after planting; harvest fruit late the first season. Alpines yield teeny one-inch wild berries with intense flavor. They produce one cup of berries a day through June and July, and handfuls throughout the rest of the season.

I am going with the day-neutral type, called "Tribute." It is a true perennial that supposedly yields luscious, full-size berries over a much longer season than June bearing types. Twenty-five plants is a good number to start with. In choosing a spot to make your strawberry patch, make sure it receives at least six hours of sun a day. Well drained, fertile soil and good air circulation will provide better yields.

Create raised beds for good soil drainage and soil that warms quickly in the spring. Pile the soil into two rows two-feet wide and six inches high. Leave a two-foot wide path between rows. Mix a lot of compost, shredded leaves, and peat moss into the bed to improve soil and help it retain moisture. Do not fertilize at planting time, you'll have lush foliage and perhaps dead roots. Weed often before planting your bed and while the strawberries are young. Their roots are shallow and cannot compete with any other vegetation.

Mulch plants with an organic mulch such as straw, or leaves to suppress weeds and retain moisture. Keep new plants watered between rains, about an inch a week is sufficient. Pull weeds by hand, do not use any gardening tools in the bed, as the roots of the plants can be injured. Pull up old strawberry plants about every three to four years when their yields drop. Inspect plans regularly for pests and diseases. Cover strawberry plants with a half-mesh nylon netting to keep away squirrels and birds.

To winterize your bed, you can mow strawberry beds, with the lawnmower set at its highest setting. After the last harvest, fertilize with fish fertilizer. If powdery mildew is a problem over the season, prevent it from over-wintering by treating infected plants with wettable sulphur powder. Apply after harvest and early in spring when plants emerge. Mulch beds in early winter after the ground freezes and the temps drop below 20 degrees. Cover plants with six inches of organic material.

How about some strawberry shortcake? Sounds like a plan to me! Peace in gardening.

Local garden center supports 'Memories, Milestones & Miracles' cancer fund raiser

Home gardeners across North America will have the opportunity this spring to buy an exclusive collection of impatiens—and support breast cancer research at the same time, thanks to "Memories, Milestones & Miracles."

More than 300 garden centers across North America—including Leider's Garden Greenery in Grayslake—are participating in "Memories, Milestones & Miracles." This is a groundbreaking campaign involving all facets of the horticultural industry. The ultimate goal is to join forces to increase breast cancer awareness and raise research funds for The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation.

"Memories, Milestones & Miracles" is the brainchild of Goldsmith Seeds, Inc., one of the world's largest wholesale breeders of hybrid flower seed, and Ladies' Home Journal magazine. A special mixture of three pink shades of impatiens will be sold exclusively in two distinct containers. They are: a 12-inch hanging basket from Landmark Plastic Corporation or a 15-inch European ceramic planter box from Countryman Ceramics. Both will be identified with a colorful, designer plant tag from the John Henry Company. Home gardeners who purchase either of these impatiens-filled containers will receive a free sparkling pink, ribbon-shaped Swarovski crystal pin symbolizing breast cancer awareness. What better way to honor the memory of a loved one or raise research funds for such a worthy cause?

"Memories, Milestones & Miracles" is bringing together all facets of the horticultural industry, including seed suppliers, growers, container and plant tag manufacturers and garden centers. A generous portion of the proceeds from each will be donated to The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation.

"Memories, Milestones & Miracles" will be launched on May 1, just in time for Mother's Day, and will run throughout the month of May. A feature article will be in the May issue of Ladies' Home Journal magazine listing Leider's Garden Center, Grayslake, and other garden centers across North America.

The exclusive mixture of impatiens, named the "Accent Miracle Collection," coordinates with the pink ribbon that symbolizes breast cancer awareness. Impatiens are the most popular bedding plant, and "Accent" from Goldsmith Seeds is among the most popular impatiens series available.

"We believe this campaign will spearhead a new thinking among progressive leaders in the horticulture industry and, more importantly, directly benefit breast cancer research," says Joel Goldsmith, president of Goldsmith Seeds, Inc.

Linda Van Wilgen, a columnist for Garden Center magazine, adds, "I applaud those growers and retailers who joined "Memories." Those with the vision and foresight to see the value of this program."

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, which was established in 1982 by Nancy Brinker in memory of her sister, who died from breast cancer at age 36, is the nation's largest private funder of research dedicated solely to breast cancer education and research. Today, breast cancer is the leading cause of death for women ages 35-54. It is estimated that more than 1.8 million women and 12,000 men will be diagnosed with breast cancer this decade. With the help of Komen outreach efforts, hundreds of thousands of men and women receive the life-saving message of early detection. If detected early, breast cancer has a five-year survival rate of more than 95 percent.

CANCER RESOURCE CENTER

Walk-in mammograms set at Gurnee Mills

Strike "I don't have the time" and "it's not convenient" as excuses for not getting a mammogram.

Every Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., no appointment is necessary for a mammogram at the Cancer Resource Center in Gurnee Mills Mall, located at Entrance H, next to JC Penney. Just walk in, sign the appointment book, and in less than 30 minutes, your mammogram will be completed by a caring and conscientious imaging technician who specializes in mammography.

Cost for a mammogram is $49, including reading and interpretation by a Board-certified radiologist. Results will be sent to your personal physician.

To make an appointment or for more information, call (800) 940-2822. The Cancer Resource Center, America's number one source for news and information about cancer, is affiliated with Cancer Treatment Centers of America.

MIDWESTERN REGIONAL

Free blood pressure screenings

Have your blood pressure chcked by a healthcare professional at the office of a physician affiliated with Midwestern Regional Medical Center, Zion. Call the physician closest to you for an appointment:

Lake Villa: Dr. Pedro Palu-ay, Dr. Daisy Andaleon, and Dr. Lubna Maruf, 300 N. Milwaukee Ave., 356-6602;

Lindenhurst: Dr. Semyon Maslovsky, 2045 E. Grand Ave., 356-6131;

Westmoreland Rd., Lake Forest.

The group provides psychological support fort hose with a loved one suffering from Alzheimer's disease or other types of dementia. The meetings are informal and facilitated by a Lake Forest Hospital staff member. For more information, call 295-3619, ext. 5982.

The Village at Victory Lakes in final stages

Workers 'top off' buildings at the 68-acre continuing care retirement community in Lindenhurst

Stephen Wright, project manager for The Village at Victory Lakes, recently announced that workers have completed the roofs on all facilities at its 68-acre continuing care retirement community in Lindenhurst. Now that the non-profit project has been "topped off," Wright says construction at The Village is more than 55 percent complete and headed into the finishing stages.

Bordering Lindenhurst's Duck Farm Forest Preserve and adjacent to Victory Lakes Continuing Care Center at 1055 E. Grand Ave., the retirement community will feature 40 two- and three-bedroom cottages, 100 one- and two-bedroom apartments and 60 assisted-living suites. When completed, it will be the only continuing care retirement community in western Lake County.

"We're getting a little closer to our goal everyday," said Mark Rounds, construction manager for general contractor Paul H. Schwendener, who adds that workers are now busy framing apartments, installing drywall and preparing the community's facilities for woodwork, painting and interior design. "With the achievement of this major milestone, we continue to stay right on schedule for The Village's fall opening."

Construction on The Village began in May 1997. Planned amenities for the community include a 30,000-square-foot community center that will house a health and fitness center, library, auditorium, beauty/barber shop, convenience store, deli/ice cream parlor and woodworking shop. Hospitality services offered will include restaurant-style dining, housekeeping, regularly-scheduled transportation, year-round building and grounds maintenance, an emergency call system, community security and on-site health care 24 hours a day. Architects for the project are Legat Architects of Waukegan.

"The Village is going to be a true community," Wright said. "We can't wait for our residents to enjoy active, independent lifestyles in a safe, scenic setting."

The Village at Victory Lakes, through its parent organization, Victory Health Services, is associated with Victory Memorial Hospital in Waukegan and Victory Lakes Continuing Care Center in Lindenhurst.

Make your workout count! Join the 'Workout for Hope'

On Saturday, April 25, Chicagoland residents can make their personal workout impact the lives of millions by joining Workout for Hope at Rosemont Convention Center, Donald Stephens Ballroom, 5555 North River Road, Rosemont. The fitness fund-raiser benefits HIV/AIDS and related cancer research at City of Hope National Medical Center and Beckman Research Institute.

Registration is at 7 a.m. and the workout is held from 9 a.m. to noon. Top instructors from the city's health clubs will lead a dynamic workout with fitness activities for every level. Workout for Hope activities include step, slide, body pump, kickboxing, yoga and more.

To participate, you use an official sponsor form to collect donations and bring the money you raise to the event. Participants are required to raise a minimum of $50 to receive an official event T-shirt. To request a sponsor form, call 583-8600. Or visit the official Workout for Hope website at http://workout.coh.org.

Workout for Hope is the nation's largest fitness event and happens in 55 cities during April and May. The event is supported nationally by AVIA, a manufacturer of fitness shoes and apparel. Local sponsors include Evian, Pioneer Press, Kozy's Cyclery, Workout City and Quill.

Actress and model Carol Alt is Workout for Hope National Spokesperson. "The battle against HIV/AIDS is not over," said Alt. "It is estimated that 30 million people worldwide have HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. New drug treatments offer hope, but they are not a cure. I hope all who can will join me in this celebration of health and fitness and help find a way to stop this epidemic."

City of Hope believes that gene therapy may prove to be a treatment for HIV/AIDS. In 1997, it began human clinical trials of a gene therapy approach using bone marrow transplantation that may prevent or delay the development of AIDS in HIV-infected persons. Although a very sophisticated treatment, gene therapy for AIDS carries the potential of lowering the costs of treatment. Most of the procedures would be done on an outpatient basis, and patients would undergo a single course of treatment lasting several weeks.

The City of Hope National Medical Center and Beckman Research Institute is renowned for its treatment and research to combat cancer, diabetes, HIV/AIDS and other serious illnesses. The work conducted at City of Hope is shared with medical centers worldwide, touching the lives of people everywhere, including the Chicagoland area.

Lab staff members at Midwestern named stakeholders of the year

Bright ideas in business—strategies or tactics that save money, increase revenue or make customers more satisfied—are what make great companies even better. And that's just the scenario at Midwestern Regional Medical Center and Cancer Treatment Centers of America in Zion, where seven staff members of the laboratory department were named stakeholders of the year for increasing volume and revenue without increasing staff.

"The lab began working with a local nursing home in January 1997, performing all of their lab work at Midwestern," explained Gary Rogaczewski, laboratory directory. "This new relationship increased our test volume and subsequent revenue."

For their efforts, Rogaczewski, of New Berlin, Wis., and his six-team members—Jay Feinstein of Great Lakes, Sandy Garza of Great Lakes, Francis Mercurio of Kenosha, Wis., Darlene Schaefer of Libertyville, Cathy Stockwell of Winthrop Harbor, and Karen Tomey of Waukegan, were named "Stakeholders of the Year" during the hospital's annual holiday celebration.

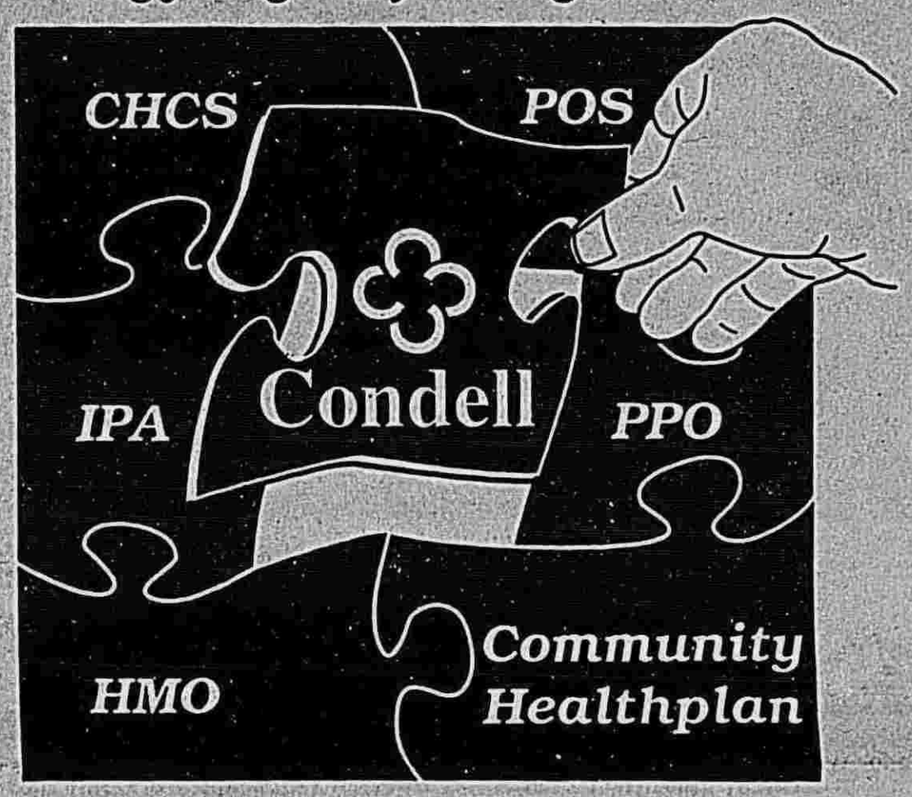

"The more subtle and significant long-term benefits to the hospital go beyond the confines of the laboratory," said Roger C. Cary, Midwestern president and CEO, during the award presentation. "Through this relationship, the laboratory and the hospital gain increased local visibility as well as new patient admissions."

"Stakeholder" is a fairly new concept which was implemented as part of a hospital-wide employee reward system in 1996. As a stakeholder, each member of the organization contributes to its overall success by focusing their daily work activities on quality patient care.

DePaul looking for county campus site

By JASON J. KING
Staff Reporter

Officials from DePaul University said Wednesday they are continuing to look for a site for a future Lake County campus.

DePaul spokesperson Denise Mattson said reports in last week's Depaul student newspaper claiming a site has been determined are false but confirmed a number of different sites are being considered.

"We are actively looking for a site in Lake County," said Mattson. "We haven't come to a conclusion yet."

Mattson said the university has been looking for a site for almost a year now after the success of previous suburban expansions.

Mattson said the success of the university's Naperville campus indicates further expansion would be beneficial for both DePaul and suburban students.

The Naperville campus opened a permanent campus last September after a brief stint as a temporary campus.

"It was very successful," said Mattson. ""We had been doing a lot of market research on suburban campuses."

Mattson said based on the research, Lake County seemed the next likely expansion.

DePaul, with an enrollment of 17,800 students, has five campuses, three suburban campuses in Naperville, the O'Hare area and Oak Forest, and two in the city, the loop campus and the Lincoln Park campus.

The Lake County campus would probably be geared toward adult learners and people with full-time jobs said Mattson.

"There might be certificate programs, degree completion programs or for people who are looking for advanced degrees," said Mattson.

The DePaulia, the student newspaper, reported last week that DePaul officials were close to naming a site in the Conway Farms development as its Lake County site. Conway Farms is located near the intersection of Interstate 94 and Route 60, between Lake Forest and Libertyville.

Mattson said the story was in error.

"We hope it would be sooner rather than later," she said of the campus' opening. "We know that we're going to be growing. When we find a suitable site we'll announce it."

Mattson said the university's decision to either lease space of erect new buildings will depend largely on the site that is decided upon.

Four juveniles charged in accidental shooting death

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Four children playing with a gun that shot Stacey Jesse, 14, of Antioch were charged on Tuesday, April 21 with offenses related to the incident.

All children involved in the event were 14 years old.

The young male who shot Jesse was charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Two other young males present are charged with theft of a firearm.

All four children present at the unintentional shooting were charged with unlawful possession of a firearm by a minor.

A fifth child present, female, was not charged .

"This minor is charged with recklessly causing the death of Miss Jesse," said Mike Waller, State's Attorney for Lake County.

The act was considered reckless because the child had a gun with a bullet, knew there was a bullet in it, and he pointed it at her and pulled the trigger. "He believed the gun would not fire," Waller said.

"They are not in custody," he said. There is no basis under law to confine the children involved in the incident in a youth home.

"There is no jury trial. It's all in front of a judge," Waller said. "We anticipate the first court appearance will be late next week."

The range of possible penalties is from probation to placement with the juvenile department of corrections.

"The goal is not to do anything other than to have an appropriate sentence imposed," Waller said. "If you are involved in conduct like this, there are consequences in Lake County."

Antioch Upper Grade School 8th grade honor roll student Stacey Jesse died from the unintentional gunshot wound Wednesday, April 15 at St. Therese Medical Center. The preliminary police investigation suggested that it was an accidental shooting that occurred at the home of a friend of Jesse.

Jesse was an honor roll student. She had been active in drama productions, choir, softball, and gymnastics. She was an enthusiastic student with many friends.

In the course of the police investigation, it was determined that there were five juveniles in the room at the time of the shooting. A .25-caliber automatic gun had been brought to the house two weeks earlier by a sixth juvenile.

Work on I-94 in Kenosha County scheduled to start week of April

Work on a $10.6 million contract for one of the most significant road projects in Wisconsin this year, resurfacing and related work on northbound and southbound I-94 in Kenosha County, is scheduled to start on Monday, April 2 7.

The contractor, Payne & Dolan, Inc., Waukesha, is scheduled to finish the project by Sept. 4. Start of work has been delayed one week pending execution of the contract, which was completed Monday.

All work on holiday weekends wills top at 12 p.m. Friday and resume at 6 a.m. Tuesday. On non-holiday weekends the contractor can work form 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings.

"Preparation work to fill rumble strips in northbound and southbound shoulder lanes will occur during the first week of the project. Right lanes and shoulders will be closed to allow for the moving operation," said Project Manager Mike Burns of the Wisconsin Department of Transportation.

Shoulders will be used to keep two lanes open in both directions at all times. However, Burns said there will be occasional two-lane closures north of the project in Racine County between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. for installation of Freeway Traffic Management System cameras and sensors.

Ramps at WIS 165, WIS 50 and WIS 158 will remain open at all times, Burns said. Other ramps in the project area will be closed for one to two weeks each, although not simultaneously. Signage advising of closings will be posted five days in advance.

This 12-mile project, from the Illinois line to Racine County, will have a major impact on commuter, tourism and truck traffic between Illinois and various points in Wisconsin. Extensive backups could result at times unless drivers plan ahead, travel at different times, take alternate routes or, where possible, use transit," he said.

Work will include deck overlays and waterproofing of 20 bridges, concrete base patching and replacement of beam guards with concrete barrier walls. new signage will be erected to enhance safety.

The roadway, built in 1960, has rutted severely since its last major rehabilitation in 1983.

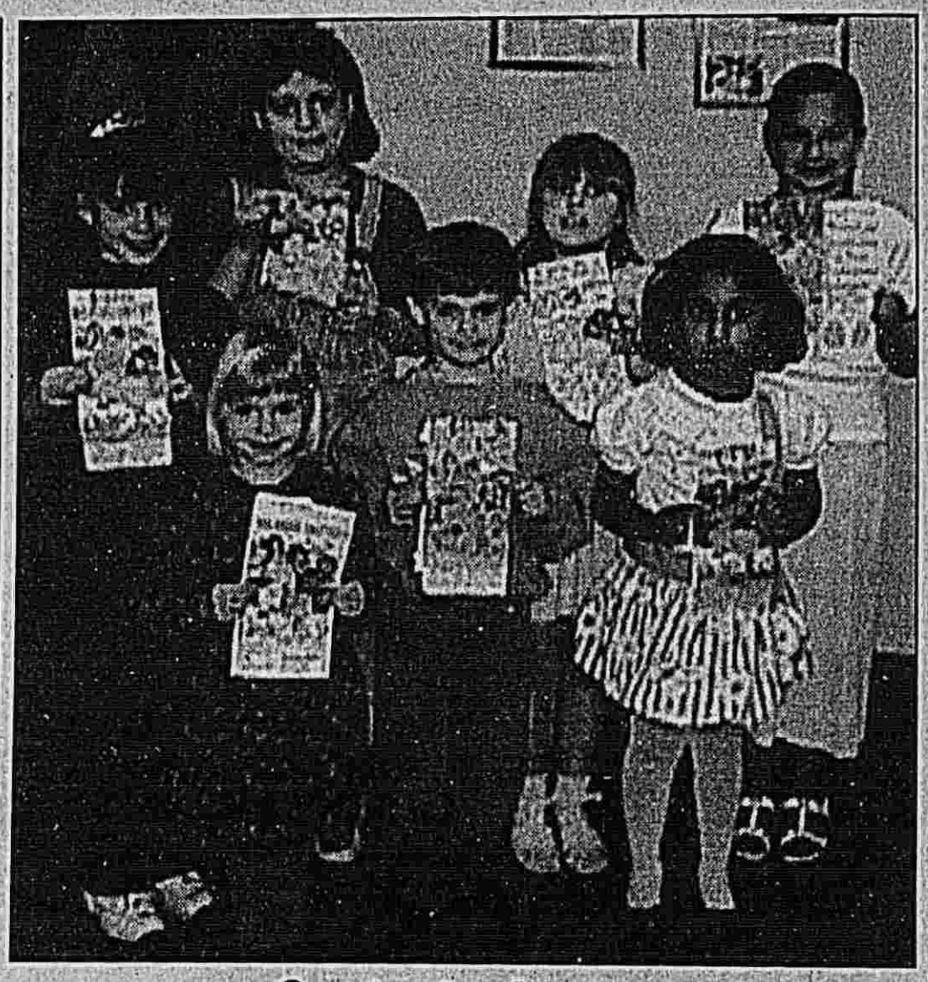

Burns said the asphalt will be milled off and replaced with a new, high tech product called Superpave, designed to have longer life than conventional asphalt. The product, tested in extreme climates in northern Minnesota and in Arizona deserts, was used with good results on the I-94 westbound resurfacing in Milwaukee and Waukesha Counties last year. it is being used this year in the eastbound lanes of that project.

I-94 in Kenosha County carries an average daily volume of 69,200 vehicles, about one-fifth of them trucks. Daily volume is expected to reach 102,500 in 20 years.

Federal funds are to pay 90% and state funds the rest of costs.

Transit information is available at the following numbers: Wisconsin Coach Lines, mass transit service between Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee, 1-800-236-2015; City of Kenosha transit 414-653-4287; Metra Commuter Rail, serving Kenosha, Chicago and northeastern Illinois, 312-836-7000.

Current information about the project will be provided by the WisDOT hotline at 414-548-5684 when the project begins.

Volunteer partners of all ages needed for MDA summer camp

Volunteers are needed for the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. summer camp sessions on June 6 to 13 and June 13 to 20 in Lake Villa.

If you're 16 years or older and enjoy swimming, boating, horseback riding, archery and other qutdoor sports, as well as a variety of evening activities, a week as an MDA camp partner will be a week you will remember all year long.

Volunteers of all ages gather each year for one week to provide individuals with muscle disease a chance to share a fun-filled week in the sun. With the help of the arms and legs of a volunteer, a camper can do almost anything. Without it, campers may miss the joys of camp.

For more information call the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. at (847) 427-8611.

CLC celebrates Community College Month in April

The College of Lake County is joining other Illinois community colleges in observing Community College Month in April. The Illinois celebration is part of a national observance recognizing the contributions of the more than 1,200 two-year colleges across the United States.

"In today's technology-driven, global economy, continuous learning is necessary for everyone," said CLC President Gretchen Naff. "Community colleges provide a nearby and affordable means for individuals to meet this challenge."

Nationally, more than 10 million students attended two-year colleges last year, including about one million students in Illinois (one out of every 11 Illinois residents). Of these, nearly 15,000 students were enrolled at CLC during the fall and spring semesters of the 1997-98 academic year, including nearly one in four recent Lake County high school graduates.

CLC offers college transfer programs leading to associate in arts, science and engineering science degrees and career education programs leading to associate in applied science degrees and certificates. It also offers training for business and industry, adult basic education (GED, ESL) and continuing education for personal enrichment.

Since the college opened for classes in 1969, more than 300,000 students have enrolled in its classes, and the college has awarded more than 19,000 degrees and certificates. It is sixth in size among Illinois' 49 community colleges.

CLC is celebrating Community College Month with a variety of activities, including a student art exhibit through May 17, a week-long Earth Day program from April 20-24, a free jazz concert on April 22 and a free choral concert on April 26.

For more information, call the public relations office at 543-2094.

Relay For Life benefits American Cancer Society

The Lake County Unit of the American Cancer Society is organizing a Relay For Life, an overnight walk and run, to be held at Carmel High School in Mundelein from 6 p.m. Friday, June 12, to noon Saturday, June 13.

Relay For Life is a unique and fun way to raise money for the American Cancer Society and increase awareness of its services.

Relay teams will consist of eight to 12 people from companies, hospitals, church groups, civic organizations, and neighborhoods who get pledges from friends, co-workers, family members and neighbors.

Early bird registration is $100 until May 1, and $120 until the registration deadline of May 15.

For more information or to obtain a registration packet, contact the American Cancer Society at (847) 336-9293.

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

Middle School tops in science

GRAYSLAKE—The Grayslake Middle School Science Olympiad Team now ranks second in Illinois, following their victory at the state competition, April 18.

The top two teams from every state competition at the middle school and high school level are eligible to compete in the national competition in Michigan, May 16. Grayslake Middle School will be among them.

Science Olympiad is a 14-year-old science competition designed to foster interest in science among students. Currently over 13,500 schools nationwide participate, starting on a regional level.

This will be the fourth time the Grayslake Middle School Science Olympiad team has been eligible for nationals in its nine years of competing. The have been eligible for state competition every year since 1991.

Students help clean Wauconda

WAUCONDA—Students at Wauconda Grade School got a hands-on lesson about Earth Day by cleaning and helping elderly residents as part of the school's Learn and Serve Program.

"The entire building is doing things all over town," said Lyn Hampel, a second grade teacher and coordinator of the school's Learn and Serve Program. About 750 students in the school's grades 2-6 participated in the activities held April 22, cleaning up parks, sweeping streets and helping elderly residents plant bulbs and sweep their walks.

The projects were done in conjunction with the $8,300 grant the school received from the state of Illinois to come up with a curriculum to help solve the needs of the community.

Russian cops like Mundelein

MUNDELEIN—Officials and police learned their efforts to fight to combat crime and gang activity is not much different than what is happening in Russia. Colonel Vladimir Sergevnin and Lt. Nikolai Tsarev of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Russia Vladimir Institute of Law and Economy spent April 20 learning different policing programs, training methodologies as well as touring the Poet and Diamond Lake areas where police have increased their presence.

The officers were generally pleased with what they saw, said Police Chief Raymond J. Rose, but were interested to learn more about the two Community Resource Centers set up at a shopping plaza and apartment complex, as 95 percent of their population lives in apartments.

"They thought this was very interesting and were very excited about it," Rose said. In fact, the Russians said they will call Rose once they return home to get further details, and Rose said he will send them information about how they can implement it in Russia.

Scouts raise funds with picnic tables

LAKE VILLA—Boy-Scout-built cedar picnic tables are still available for sale after the initial construction weekend of the year.

Scout Troop 188 bolts the tables together from donated cedar wood to raise money to pay for their year-long activity program.

"We've never had a problem selling them," said Scout Master Randy Bernhardt. "These are all-cedar, two-inch lumber. They're pretty high quality tables."

The tables are the classic A-frame design.

"With cedar you don't need to coat them," he said.

The tables can be purchased by calling Bernhardt at 847-838-0718 after 5 p.m. The troop has approximately a half dozen available now and will build more if necessary.

Troop 188 is sponsored by Lake Villa United Methodist Church and by Prince of Peace Catholic Church. The troop has 11 members between 11 and 16 years old.

Venetian Village hosts gang program

LINDENHURST—A former gang member will talk to a Venetian Village Neighborhood Watch meeting open on Saturday, April 25.

"We hope to educate the attendees in identifying gang related behaviors," said Virginia McGregor of the Venetian Village Neighborhood Watch program.

The program will be from 7 to 9 p.m. at Venetian Village Hall at San Rem Avenue and Capillo Avenue.

"This program is open for the public," she said.

The program will also discuss gang graffiti, the presence of gangs in the area, and gang signs. The program is intended to help people recognize gang presence in their area.

Open space concerns at forefront

LIBERTYVILLE—Open space concerns and the future of current open space lands were at the forefront of the annual Libertyville Township town meeting this week.

Around 40 township residents were in attendance on Tuesday, April 21, for the mandatory meeting, the first annual meeting since current township supervisor F.T. "Mike" Graham regained the post last year.

Graham, running under the "Curb Over-Development, Save the Land Platform," told voters if elected he would renew his pursuit of purchasing open land within the township.

Graham has talked about obtaining bonds, to the tune of $43 million, for the purchase of such land without allowing township voters a say on the matter via a referendum. The township board has employed Lane Kendig to formulate an open space plan, the first step to acquiring more funds to purchase more land.

On Tuesday, Graham and his board garnered the support of a neighboring municipality as well as other township residents.

Des Plaines held at bay this year

LIBERTYVILLE—For years it's been an annual rite of spring.

Residents in the North Libertyville Estates subdivision, since the area was first developed in the 1950's, have dealt with the rising waters of the Des Plaines river and the havoc it has caused when it jumps its banks.

Sandbags, long hours and flooded homes have been the rule rather than the exception over the years.

This year, however, all that has changed thanks to 5,500 feet of compacted clay.

"It's the first year in a long time that the spring waters haven't come in from the river," said Fischler. "We seem to be pretty well protected."

The levee is constructed of 5,500 feet of compacted clay and includes a 150-foot flood wall, a two-foot wide drainage ditch and an interior storm drain complete with pumps to aid in drainage.

The cost of the work totals approximately $2.7 million. Federal funds, secured by Congressman John Porter, will pay for about 75 percent of the work. Lake County is responsible for the remainder of the cost. Local funds were secured by Lake County Board members Bob Grever, John Schulien and state Senator Adeline Geo-Karis.

Juvenile computer thief nabbed

FOX LAKE—"I feel as though my computer's been stalked." Kristine Sanko stated with shock.

This came in the wake of the 6:20 a.m. phone call that woke Sanko from a deep sleep, telling her that the Fox Lake Chamber of Commerce and the Fox Lake Community Center were burglarized in the middle of the night on Friday.

"It's weird," Sanko continued. "Why would anyone want to steal from the chamber?"

"There have been a lot of burglaries in the Fox Lake Area lately," Lt. Richard Becmer stated. "I urge people to get in touch with their alarm companies and talk to them about response times."

According to Becmer, a 15 year old Fox Lake juvenile male was apprehended in the Chamber of Commerce office burglary on Sunday. He is also being questioned for a couple of other burglaries in the area.

Donnellan resigns, takes new job

WAUCONDA—Wauconda Unit District 118 officials are looking for a principal for Wauconda Middle School, now that John P. Donnellan has announced his resignation.

Donnellan, 35, will become principal of Grant Township High School in Fox Lake, starting July 1, nearly three years to the day he started at WMS.

"I kind of felt over the last year, I missed the high school environment," Donnellan said.

Donnellan had spent four years as assistant principal of Hampshire Middle and High schools before coming to Dist. 118 on July 21, 1995, and had taught for five years at Jacobs High School, and then spent two years as special education supervisor for seven schools—four middle schools and three high schools—in Carpentersville Community School District 300.

ACHS presents "Kilroy was Here"

ANTIOCH—Antioch Community High School students will present four performances of "Kilroy was Here!" this weekend.

It's a play with music, singing, dancing, comedy and drama.

"It revolves around a U.S.O. Club in Brooklyn in 1942," said Director Jenny Sliker. "The young woman in charge of the U.S.O. Club has been asked to watch out for spies."

"I think the students have really put in a lot of hard work," Sliker said. There are 36 performers in this production. "The musical numbers are Andrews Sisters-type harmony or jitterbug dancing."

The Friday, April 24 evening performance is 7:30 p.m. On Saturday, April 25 there are performances at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. On Sunday, April 26 there is a last performance at 5:30 p.m.

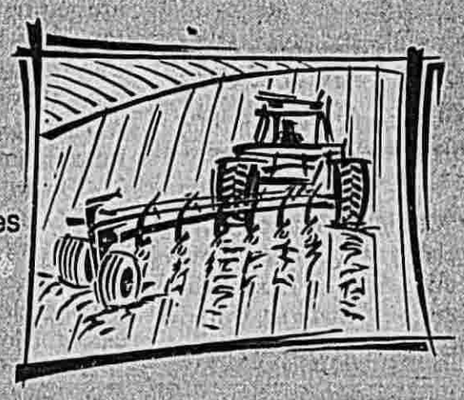

Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students. Groups of 10 or more may call 847-395-1421, ext. 867, to arrange for a group discount for seats.

Don't let the bully steal your lunch

There is a mystery here. The Village of Volo announced it would be slashing school impact fees in order to entice developers to annex into their village. Curious at least, but that is not the mystery here.

The mystery is in the perceived lack of public reaction of the school districts involved, Big Hollow and Grant High School, who will more than likely be devastated by an increased influx of students and little advance money from impact fees to pay for their education.

Their reaction? The respective superintendents have been very dignified in their initial on-the-record statements to the press which may lead one to believe they feel splitting $900 in impact fees per rooftop is better than getting nothing at all.

If that is the case, then it is flawed logic. Is getting a kick in the head better than getting no kick at all? Certainly not. The metaphor works because getting kicked in the head is exactly what is happening to the schools.

The potential of getting $2,700 per household, as recommended by the Western Lake County School Impact Fee Coalition, weighed against the potential of upsetting the mayor of Volo enough to get him to kill impact fees entirely is worth the fight. To let things go on as they are is like letting the neighborhood bully steal your lunch without a fight, just so he won't think of stealing your bike as well.

The stance of the districts is changing however. They're challenging the bully. Representatives from both Big Hollow and Grant had been relentlessly dogging Volo and the Lakes Region Sanitary District, voicing their opposition to the proposed annexation every chance they get and attempting to educate themselves thoroughly on the matter. The districts have found their voice, and that voice is growing louder.

And what if the mayor did kill impact fees entirely? How is a developer going to get his asking price if the homebuyers are educated about the devastated school systems? Smoke and mirrors.

The school district could educate the new homebuyers if they chose to. Naturally, not by spending their own funds and resources, but instead by galvanizing citizens groups to fight this travesty. It has been done before. Another group is beginning to take shape.

When Big Hollow was threatened with the development of an asphalt plant virtually at the edge of the playground, district residents got together to organize a howl of protest. It worked. Today, there are no petro chemical fumes wafting over the school grounds and no thunder of heavy equipment pounding down the pavement. To the asphalt plant, it was not worth the hassle and they went elsewhere.

The same can be done again with residents of all the communities involved, including Volo. Who do the Volo property owners think will pay for the impact to the school if the gamble doesn't pay off that sewers and rooftops will bring retail centers and sales tax revenue? There is an election coming up. If the citizens got involved, the village board of Volo would have a better gamble plunking a riverboat down in the middle of the Volo Bog.

Something is not always better than nothing.

The districts are beginning to take a hard line stance against the developers and the villages who leave them out of the equation. For that they deserve our applause and encouragement.

School districts, taxpayers, it's time to take your lunches back from the neighborhood bully and run over his foot with your bike for good measure.

VIEWPOINT

Hillary's future has Senate theme

BILL SCHROEDER
Publisher

Here's a scary thought: U.S. Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton (D-Ill.) Don't laugh. It could happen. Nothing is surprising about the Illinois native and her Peter Pan husband, our president and glandular leader of the free world.

First an admission. I didn't dream up the cock-eyed scenerio about Hillary. As hip media guys always explain, there's a source, in "impeccable" source.

This is the line on my source: Hilliary's plans to serve in the U.S. Senate came via a relative who works with a woman whose brother went to Maine High in Park Ridge with the future First Lady. They were classmates. There, that ought to be impeccable enough.

Well, the way the story came to me, Hillary supposedly was noshing with friends at a class reunion last fall and jokingly dropped the idea she'd like to run for the Senate from Illinois after her days in the White House are over. I'm no Hillary expert, but I'm among the faithful who believe that humorless Hillary never jokes about anything.

Here's what Hillary has up her sleeve (I think). The Clintons become private citizens in 2000. With Hillary totally in charge, there's no way she and Bill are going back to Arkansas. They establish legal residence in Illinois, not only because it's a neat place to domicile, but it could be a worthwhile address in the future. (You never know, get it?).

With the twitch for elective office, sometime in 2000, Hillary Rodham (she'll probably take back her maiden name by then) launches her bid for a Senate seat already in Democratic hands. U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin's term is up in 2002. At this point, the options all are in Hillary's favor. Durbin can retire and throw his support to the former First Lady. Or, if there's a Democratic governor to control the appointive process, Durbin will resign to pave the way for a Hillary appointment and she can run with incumbent status in 2002. Getting Durbin to resign will be easy because he's easy. A juicy federal appointment could sway him in a New York minute.

With no/little assistance from Republican women in Lake and DuPage counties enamored with "woman issues" espoused by Senator Rodham, Hillary would be a cinch for election on her own four years from now. After that, who knows? Pardon us for stating the obvious: the first female president, the big kahuna.

As we mentioned above, never underestimate that forceful, fearless, focused female from the Prairie State. A politician from Illinois with a name always is in the limelight. A presidential possibility. Bank on it.

Headed toward clergy

Sam McKee, a recipient of the M.R. Schroeder/Lakeland Newspaper Scholarship presented annually at College of Lake County, has decided to be a minister rather than a newspaperman. McKee, a graduate of Antioch High and a former editor of the CLC Chronicle, is pursing an interest in youth ministery he has maintained since teenage years. Sam would have been a top-notch newsman, but he's destined to become a top-notch clergyman. Our best wishes.

Say what?

Doug Stiles, Waukegan attorney, introduced himself at a meeting of the Downtown Association as a "lawyer and shyster." Doug got the expected laugh from his fellow luncheoners and the admiration that not all barristers are aloff and humorless.

No Bob book

News of the death of long-time lawman Bob Trinski after a four-year battle with cancer brought back a flood of memories about the former Chicago detective who ashued retirement to become police chief of Fox Lake and later head of the Lake County Sheriff's Marine Patrol on the Chain O'Lakes.

Chief Trinski's career with the Chicago PD included service with the bomb and arson squad and some exciting years with the robbery detail when it was headed by the legendary Lt. Frank Pape, whose unerring marksmanship earned him a reputation as America's top cop.

Chatting with Bob about police work was like listening to a motion picture action scenerio. "Bob," I once suggested, "you ought to write a book." Chief Trinski curbed my enthusiasm with the rejoinder: "I don't think it would be interesting. I was just a cop, doing my job." Vintage Bob Trinski, a fearless law enforcement officer who never turned his back on a friend. Our condolences to his beloved wife, Shirley, and their family.

Gas tax funds not being allocated fairly

SEEING IT THROUGH
John S. Matijevich

I recently read the results of a survey conducted by State Rep. Mike Brown, a newly appointed legislator from McHenry County. A few of his questions related to traffic, highway construction, and tollways. Not surprisingly, over eighty percent said that the legislature should take over the tollway's budget since nobody oversees spending by the scandal-ridden agency. That issue is in the courts as the tollway authority has arrogantly refused to follow a lower court order that authorized the state to take over the budgetary process.

Representative Brown said that he was "stumped" by one phase of his survey. Although 61 percent of the respondents said that roads and bridges needed massive repairs, an equal number said that they would not support a gasoline tax to pay for the repairs.

That may sound contradictory to him, but he shouldn't be that surprised. What the taxpayers are saying is that they don't feel that they are getting their fair share of the gas taxes now imposed, so why should they pay more taxes. Overwhelmingly, they responded that the state must do more in its allocation of funds to improve local roads.

On the subject of the gas tax, the Lake County Board seems to be leaning toward asking the legislature to enact law to allow local voters, in a referendum, to raise gasoline taxes. Some local legislators, using the

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Pumpkin farm redux

Critics of Libertyville Township supervisor R.T. "Mike" Graham had their fires stoked last week and it was by none other than Graham himself.

Graham happens to be the paid executor of the Rudd family estate, holders of the 38 acre Rudd family farm parcel along O'Plaine Rd., in southwest Waukegan.

That parcel was on the agenda at the Waukegan development commission meeting for a possible zoning change, to R-1. The asking price on the farm is $2 million.

Interestingly, Graham was not on hand at the meeting, probably to quell a political backlash over the supervisor's "Curb Over Development, Save the Land," stance on development.

This isn't the first time Graham has profited from the big, bad developers. He sold his family's pumpkin farm to developers for a cool $2 million in 1995.

If you're going to talk the talk, you should walk the walk as well Mike.

Graham: 'Stoking the development fires

Grinnell: Emcees Ryan fund-raiser

Geo-Karis: 'Staying put

Staying put

State Sen. Adleine Jay Geo-Karis wants to squelch any rumors that she has plans to retire. The 80-year-old grand dame of the Lake County GOP, says "I've never felt better in my life.' Geo-Karis said. "I plan to win re-election to another term and complete that term God willing." The ever- energetic Geo-Karis returned from a week-long vacation early last Friday evening and immediately want to Midlane County Club to be the Mistress of ceremonies for an Scouting event honoring County Board Member Bob Neal of Wadsworth. Then she celebrated Easter Sunday with friends. "Does that sound like I'm slowing down?" she quipped.

Marching orders

New Executive Director Antonietta Simonian of the Lake County Republican Federation has notified fall election candidates that there are 10 parades on the "must do" list this summer starting Monday, May 25, with the Round Lake Area Veterans Assn. Memorial Day parade. Next is the Saturday, June 20, Libertyville Days parade. After that, parades will be coming in a torrent. "And my list isn't complete yet," Simonian cautions. Oh, those bunions!

Not for everyone

A select guest list is expected Wednesday, April 29, for the Citizens for George Ryan fund raiser at Ramada Inn, Waukegan. It'll cost you $500 to shake hands with a possible future governor. Speaking of fund raisers, WGN's Uncle Bobby Collins, a resident of Libertyville, has signed up again for emcee duties at a June 10 event to give the campaign coffers of Sheriff Gary Del Re a lift. Only $35. Collins got started emceeing for former Sheriff Clint Grinnell. The Del Re salute will be at Country Squire.

Caring about cars

One of Lake County's most cherished traditions, Scooping the Loop in downtown Waukegan, will be renewed July 10 and 11. Get those hot rods polished. Details will be handled by the North Shore Rod Assn. which has the blessings of Mayor Bill Durkin and the Waukegan Downtown Assn.

Paul honored

No, not that Paul.

Officer Cliff Paul, of the Buffalo Grove Police Department and husband of Lynda C. Paul, democratic candidate for Lake County Treasurer, was honored as Employee of the Fourth Quarter, 1997 by the department.

Lynda was said to quite proud of her husband.

We sure have fun with words

THE PFARR CORNER
Jerry Pfarr

Working a crossword puzzle (one of life's great escapes) I needed a six-letter word for the clue, "Serenaded the sheets."

I had never heard that expression, but as I continued to work the puzzle the answer turned out to be "snored." And I said to myself, isn't ours a euphemistically marvelous language? Boy oh boy, we can sugarcoat almost anything.

To snore, of course, is to breathe during sleep with a rough, hoarse noise. It's been a bugaboo since Adam snored in the Garden of Eden. There's an old saying, "Laugh and the world laughs with you, snore and you sleep alone."

A euphemism is the substitution of an agreeable or inoffensive expression for one that may offend or suggest something unpleasant. In other words, a "nicenellyism."

We euphemize lightheartedly about that eerie eventuality known as death. We soft-pedal it with such clichés as passing away, kicking the bucket, giving up the ghost, cashing in one's chips, pushing up daisies, going to our eternal reward, and checking out the other side of the grass.

Snoring long has been called "sawing wood." It may happen while we are getting some Z's. When snoozing, characters in the comic strips do this, "zzzzzzzzz," don't they?

As our manner of communication becomes more explicit, surprising euphemisms pop up in the press. Not too long ago, when a certain politician was suspected of hanky-panky with a young female office worker, one Chicago newspaper columnist wondered if they were doing "the horizontal hula." The next day a rival reporter, not to be outdone, suggested that maybe it was "the Posturepedic polka."

Speaking of dancing, that's one of the subjects we like to describe in other words, along with marriage, money, our homes and our cars.

When folks dance, they are said to trip the light fantastic, shake their booties, cut a rug, boogie and, down South, go shaggin'.

When a couple gets married they not only are united in wedlock and joined in holy matrimony, they also are said to hook up, tie the knot or take the plunge.

Comedian Jeff Foxworthy says you might be a redneck if, during your wedding ceremony, the minister asked, "Do you, DeWayne, take Connie to be your old lady?"

Money, depending on how much we have, is described as moolah, mazuma, the root of all evil, filthy lucre, the almighty dollar, chickenfeed, do-re-mi, gravy, boodle and, of course, cabbage, lettuce and spinach. Green stuff.

Home is where the heart is, or where we hang our hat. It's also our castle, our pad, our digs, our nest, roost or perch, as if we were winged creatures.

Our cars are our wheels, our crates, our rattletraps, our buckets of bolts.

The other day, after a baseball player hit a couple of home runs in the same game, an announcer observed, "He must have had his Wheaties this morning!" Yep, he was the superstar, the slugger, the big cheese, in fact, "He da man!"

But if he went to sleep that night and serenaded the sheets, no one stayed in the room to applaud.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Cox was good for schools

Dr. Edward Cox, Superintendent of Schools for Lake Zurich Unit School District 95, was fired by a 4-3 vote of the Board of Education on March 19, 1998. This was done to satisfy the political agenda of some school board members.

Dr. Cox has always been dedicated to quality education for students in District 95. He has effectively managed the demands of increasing enrollment while being accountable to the taxpayers in District 95. District 95 is financially sound because of his leadership.

I became a volunteer in District 95 in March of 1983. I served on a citizens advisory committee that addressed declining enrollment issues and deficit spending. At that time, District 95 was seriously in financial trouble. When Dr. Cox became Superintendent, I represented the community as Chairperson of a Citizens' Committee that successfully passed a $3.7 million building bond issue. Dr. Cox was an invaluable resource and instrumental in the passage of the referendum. I was elected to the Board of Education in November of 1989.

While serving on the District 95 Board, I was appointed to the Special Education District of Lake County Governing Board. I was elected President of the Special Education District of Lake County Management Council and had the opportunity to work with many superintendents throughout Lake County. While there are many fine superintendents throughout Lake County, it was this exposure that opened my eyes to the superior leadership skills of Dr. Cox. Dr. Cox is always available, open and honest, and his ethical standards are unsurpassed.

I am concerned for our community. I teach in a neighboring school district and attend classes at Northern Illinois University. The comments I hear repeatedly are that "Lake Zurich Schools are going down the tubes," and "Lake Zurich is not the place to look for a job in education." In my opinion, a certain majority of the current Board of Education of District 95 has created this image through the implementation of their calculated political agenda. The education of our children must not be sacrificed for individual gains. I hope the Board of Education will establish a goal to reestablish trust througout our community through open, honest accountability in a community able to work together in harmony.

SEEING: Allocate funds fairly

"it's off my back" theory, are also leaning to support the new gas tax strategy.

Evidently, the Lake County Board has given up its fight to convince the legislature to approve a four-cent gas tax option in Lake County, which is allowed for DuPage, McHenry, and Kane counties. When that option was enacted, Lake and Will counties were excluded.

I remember it well. The then County Board Chairman, Robert Depke, Administrator Dwight "Ike" Magalis, and Transportation Engineer Martin Buehler were bending my arm to go along with the additional gas tax. I didn't bend nor break. In fact, I strongly informed Speaker Michael Madigan that I didn't want the extra tax in Lake County. A Will County legislator expressed the same opposition for his county. It underscores the importance of having both political parties representing a particular area. The three counties which have the added four-cent gas tax option are represented by only one political party. Guess which one.

My opposition was simple. Like Rep. Brown's poll respondents, I don't believe gas tax funds are being allocated fairly. Too much emphasis is placed on building new routes rather than improving existing roads. The state's transportation department motor fuel funds used to purchase right-of-way property for tollway extensions could have gone a long way to improve local highways.

Also, I have voiced strong objection to the way roads and improvements are being constructed. It's almost a matter of planned obsolescence, so contractors can make more millions a few years hence. All of the blame can't be placed on truck traffic and being located in a freeze-thaw zone as some state engineers have answered me. My objections have been substantiated to a degree, when one of the state's largest road builders was indicted for, among other things, using inferior products on road projects.

Yes, traffic congestion is a problem. But before asking for taxpayers to dig deeper, give them what they have coming. Give them their rightful share of state and federal gas taxes. And use the funds prudently, instead of politically. Above all, don't use gas tax funds wastefully, as is the present case. No, I'm not unhappy for scrapping the added four-cent gas tax for Lake County... and I would do the same today.

Dirty trick

They have enough signatures for the Rte. 22 bybass, but I think they should have been put it up for the vote of the village. All they have is a petition for anyone who came through the village, not the village itself. I think this was a dirty trick.

Checks and balances

In reply to "Watchdog", let us not forget the United State political system is set up by checks and balances. We need more watchdogs to keep our political leaders from becoming more corrupt then they all ready are.

I have known Ross Goodrich, Sharon Dejardins and Mary Lucas for over 25 years, and they are not motivated by the loss of the election. They have won and lost elections for years and yet they continue to get involved.

Thank God we have motivated people like these to keep an eye on our elected officials, even when they don't happen to be one.

You are, however, absolutely right. Go to the next Park District meeting, find out what is going on first hand. What we don't need is another arm chair advocate. I say job well done.

Grayslake

Building block

In response to "Kids shooting kids," one of the problems that I see is that the parents are not teaching their kids about guns. Parents should be teaching their children about moral and spiritual standards. The home is the building block of society.

Trustee material

I would like to congratulate Cindy Irwin and her group for the great weekend they gave us in Fox Lake last weekend. I think she should run for trustee.

Don't run scared

This is to reply to "Gang member" in the April 10 edition of Lipservice. You say you are a real gang member from Chicago because there is nothing to do in Round Lake Beach, wasn't there a lot to do in Chicago? Don't run scared your whole life, go to school, get an education and be someone the citizens of Round Lake can admire and look up to. Don't be a gang member.

Make it a game

This is response to "Harassment." I wanted to tell the person that I agree with them 100 percent. My husband and I treat those pesky phone calls at night as a game.

My most favorite call was from a sales person who asked for Mr. or Mrs. Price, and I handed the phone to our 10-year-old son, and he proceeded to listen to the salesmen for about 10 minutes. Then my son told him that he doesn't understand his questions since he is only 10 years old. So obviously, that sales person doesn't call anymore.

So treat it as a game, have fun with it, and maybe they will quite calling you.

Guns AND cars?

This in regards to "Banning" which was a rebuttle on "Stop the guns." I am a gun owner, and I don't want to give up my guns, nor do I find it absolutely necessary to give up my guns, even with the tragedy in Arkansas. If this was the case that we should ban guns, shouldn't we ban vehicles also? In light of drunk drivers?

Round Lake

Overreacting

I am responding to "banning." When banning things is based on how the majority feels it becomes dangerously close to a communist dictatorship.

However, I would like to say some situations do require some kind of drastic action.

While I think that the country has overreacted to the smoking situation, I also believe that we have to look closer at the gun issue. While I am a strong believer in the right to bear arms, I would like someone to please explain to me what handguns and automatic hand guns do other then kill people? They are certainly not for the sport of hunting, which is originally what guns were claimed for.

Zoning issues

Why is it a non conformist business can open in the same location several different times, yet the zoneing people cannot find it, unless someone reports it? It seems to me that they should be more on the job.

Grant Drama Club

We wanted to congratulate the Grant Drama club. Last saturday we spent a delightful two hours watching the school play. We don't have anyone going to Grant High school, but we take our 11 and 12-year-old every year to Grant's productions and they are always wonderful. We rather spend the night with them there or at a football game, then drop them off at a teen center. You did a great job. We all loved it.

Missing child

Our family would like to thank everyone from the bottom of our heart who helped search for our missing son on Friday, and especially to the women who called the police because he looked to young to be walking alone. We are a very lucky family.

Round Lake Beach

Recovered computers

I am calling because I would like to thank the Fox Lake Police department for the thrift and efficient manner in recovering the stolen computer for the Fox Lake Chamber of Commerce. Their services and professionalism is much appreciated.

Not enough love?

This is in response to "mental disorder." It sounds like this person is very confused and they might be looking for a mother figure or a father figure. Maybe they didn't get love at home when they were little.

Get the story striaght

I was watching the Lake Zurich trustee meeting last week and the police chief was saying that they weren't really having that many people retire. The last time he said that they had to put a lot of overtime in because the people threw a truce in their retirement where they are short of officers.

Then when the trustees want to hire more officers to federal government plan, the chief says we really don't need them. I think that the Chief of police better get the story straight. He needs more officers because his officers aren't controlling the traffic very well.

Staying alive: A little driving advice

(Last of II Parts)

Last week I told you about Left-Lane Larry, Lane-Jumping Judy, Rubber-Necking Randy and Telephone-Talking Trisha. These folks are just a few of the daily highway menaces you may encounter as you drive to work.

Each year more than 40,000 people lose their lives needlessly on our streets and highways. Frequently, it's just an instant of inattention that costs a life. Don't become like the drivers below.

More Bad Drivers

• Tail-Gating Tommy: You'll often see Tommy exactly 11 feet behind Left-Lane Larry. Tommy doesn't realize that at 60 m.p.h. his car travels 88 feet per second. Tommy needs to learn the two-second rule. Always leave at least two seconds between you and the vehicle ahead. Use a fixed point. When the car passes that point, count slowly, 1001, 1002, and you should not have passed the point.

• Ramp-Stopping Ruby: Ruby wants to use the freeway, but hasn't learned to enter the traffic flow at the speed of the traffic. She panics at the end of the ramp and stops. Then she has to wait for a huge space to get in. It almost never happens. Finally, in desperation, Ruby dives in and lights up brake lights for a quarter of a mile up the freeway.

• Over-His-Head Harry: Harry loves speed. You'll find Harry driving at speeds too fast for road conditions. A little snow, ice, fog or rain never slows Harry down. The speed gives him a rush. Never mind that he's driving way over his skill level. You'll often see Harry sitting in the median wondering what happened. Harry needs to learn to adjust his speed to driving conditions.

• Make-Up Mopping Mary: Mary loves her face. Mary loves to look at her face. Mary likes to have her make-up fresh and perfect. Why waste all that time driving when you can freshen your make-up? Mary should mind her make-up at home. Breaking glass is hard on your face.

• Eatin' Eddie: Eddie loves to eat. He has found a way to hold the wheel and a bag of french fries. He can also hold the wheel with his knee if he needs both hands for the triple decker with extra mayo. The soda and shake he holds between his legs. Not the hot coffee though, Eddie's no dummy.

• Baby-Sitting Betty: Betty knows the importance of family. She takes good care of her children. They are properly buckled in their car seats. She turns around frequently to check on them. If Betty doesn't pay more attention to the road, she and the children may get to take a family ride in the friendly ambulance.

• Run-The-Light Ricky: Ricky just has to make the stoplight without stopping. Even if he's half a block away, he'll put the petal-to-the-metal to get through. He's been known to enter an intersection a full second after the light turns red.

• Light-Jumping Jenny: Jenny just has to be the first through the light. She cleverly watches for the caution light on the cross

One year, one million DVD movies sold

One year ago, Best Buy Co., Inc. was the first national retailer to launch the Digital Versatile Disc (DVD) hardware with a limited selection of software titles. The one-year anniversary of that launch marks the sale of Best Buy's one-millionth DVD movie while maintaining its leading marketshare position.

"This is a historic moment for the video industry," said Best Buy President Brad Anderson. "DVD movies are selling at a rate faster than when the music industry launched CDs. The public embraced the conversions from LP, game cartridges, cassettes, and floppies to discs and this indicates that consumers have fully embraced DVD, too."

In 1997, Best Buy launched DVD in 74 of its stores with five hardware models and a modest assortment of 23 movie titles from Warner Home Video. Two months after the launch, Best Buy rolled the hardware to all 272 locations nationwide. The Company continued to add software titles, with more than 500 DVD movie titles currently available. Today box office movies, such as Air Force One, are released simultaneously in DVD and VHS formats.

Warner Home Video President Warren Liebefarb said, "A million DVDs sold by Best Buy along shows DVD is here to stay. Studios are adopting it and retailers, like Best Buy, are selling it because consumer demand for DVD is strong."

This summer, Best Buy will expand its DVD software area in preparation for the more than 1,500 movie titles available from nearly all major studios.

This summer, Best Buy will expand its DVD software area in preparation for the more than 1,500 movie titles available from nearly all major studios. Today box office movies, such as Air Force One, are released simultaneously in DVD and VHS formats.

Best Buy's interactive, in-store displays allow consumers to experience the full capabilities of DVD. DVD provides enormous digital storage space with exceptional picture and theater-quality Dolby Digital™ Surround sound. DVD, similar in size and shape to a CD, is an easy-to-use, highly collectible packaged medium, offering movies in multiple screen formats, including the original theatrical widescreen version. An interactive, on-screen menu allows DVD users to switch among multiple language tracks and/or subtitles.

"DVD has launched the video and audio industries into the digital age, bringing consumers a great quality product," said CEMA President Gary Shapiro. "The consumer electronics industry's belief in DVD is showcased by the number of manufacturers supporting this product."

Minneapolis-based Best Buy Co., Inc. retails name brand consumer electronics, personal computers, entertainment software and appliances. The company is ranked 200 on the Fortune 500 with annual revenues of $8.4 billion. Best Buy operates 285 locations in 32 states and its common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange, symbol BBY.

LCEDC executive breakfast to address workforce development May 13

Lake County Economic Development Corporation's (LCEDC) Executive Breakfast, an annual opportunity for business people to network and pick up tips from experts, will highlight workforce development issues, and offer a view of the global, U.S. and Midwest economics on May 13 at Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort, 10 Marriott Drive, Lincolnshire, from 7:30 to 10 a.m. Cost is $40 per person.

Harris Investment Management Chairman and Chief Strategist Donald G.M. Coxe, will talk about the Midwest economy, the employment outlook, and what is happening with inflation. He gave up investment management in 1983 to serve as research director and strategist for a leading Canadian investment bank. From 1987 to 1993, he was a strategist on Wall Street, serving institutional investors.

Mitchell S. Fromstein, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer of Manpower Incorporated, a worldwide staffing services firm with headquarters in Milwaukee, will be the other keynote speaker. He will speak about workforce development and the staffing industry on a global scale. Fromstein is well known for the development of unique training and assessment tools for Manpower's vast pool of workers in technical, office and manufacturing skills.

LCEDC Board of Directors Member and Breakfast Co-Chairman Jerry Todd, who chairs the LCEDC's Marketing and Communications Committee, noted that the speakers, in addressing the economy and labor force training and availability issues, will be addressing topis of major interest and concern.

Lenny Dam, president of the LCEDC, indicated that he is especially enthusiastic about the 1998 Executive Breakfast because it is the first breakfast that will be held under the banner of the newly formed Lake County Economic Development Corporation. The new organization is a private sector/public sector partnership that succeeded the former Lake County Economic Development Commission.

At the Breakfast, the LCEDC will present two awards, which represent excellence in public service and economic development. The Charles E. deRivera Memorial Award will be given to a business person for outstanding commitment of time and leadership to the county's economic environment. The second, the Business/Education Linkage Award, recognizes companies and educational institutions that have formed innovative partnerships to expand students' skills and career choices.

For more information, call Debra or Carla in the Lake County Planning Department at 360-6350.

THIS WAY TO WEALTH

Nursing? Not me! A long-term plan for financial freedom

When President Clinton and Newt Gingrich found a policy they could both agree with, they held a press conference complete with photo opportunities. They were pictured shaking hands on the steps of a nursing home.

The agreement meant that as the baby boomers grow older, they can not count on Uncle Same to finance the cost of nursing home stays and long-term care. The result was a series of tax incentives and benefits aimed directly at employers and individuals to purchase insurance to protect against long-term care expenses.

Medicare may not pay

Why would someone want to risk asset loss for long-term care personally, even if they could afforded it? Long-term care expenses are generally not paid for by Medicare, Medicare supplement insurance, or major medical health insurance.

Medicaid will only pay for long-term care after a person is destitute. Having a family member come into a home to provide long-term care may not be an option or may be viewed as an unwanted burden.

Studies in The Washington Post in April of 1996 show that 60 percent of people over age 65 will need long-term care at some point in their lives. The average annual cost for nursing home care is $30,000 to $50,000 and the average length of stay 2 1/2 years, according to The New England Journal of Medicine. That's $85,000 to $125,00! That is only average.

What would happen to your retirement income if $100,000 were removed from savings? If we assume that we pay $36,000 per year today and those costs are inflated at only five percent compound, in 10 years it will cost $58,640. In 20 years at 5 percent, nursing home care will cost over $95,000 a year.

We insure our homes, our cars, our valuables, and our health. The probability of needing long-term is greater than many of the other risks we face that we insure. Long-term care should be insured just like any other risk.

Buys health

Money will pay for the long-term care insurance, but health is what buys the policy. Companies selling long-term care insurance "underwrite" their coverage. Underwriting means companies evaluate a potential customer's health history before issuing a policy.

Twenty-five percent of seniors age 65 and older would not qualify due to health reasons for private long-term care insurance. In California, one in four applicants (those who take the time to complete an application) are reflected by insurers, according to the statistical findings of the California Partnership for Long-Term Care.

By waiting from age 60 to age 70, the risk of rejection can double. As medicine improves, it is less likely that an individual will die from an accident or disease, but more likely that care will be needed for an extended period of time.

Tax deductible

For individual taxpayers, qualified long-term care insurance premiums can be a tax deduction. Long-term care premium can be added to other deductible medical expenses. To the extent these expenses. To the extent these expenses exceed 7.5 percent of a policyholder's adjusted gross income, , they are tax-deductible. The maximum amount you can add to your other deductible medical expenses is based on your age at the end of each tax year.

The long-term care insurance policy is considered qualified and therefore deductible, if it meets federal standards or was issued before January 1, 1997. Ask your advisor for information on specific tax questions.

Health insurance deductions available for the self-employed are expanding to include eligible premiums paid for qualified long-term care contracts. The Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 accelerated and increased the available deduction. This deduction is available to business owners, their spouses, and their dependents. The percentage of deductibility is based on age-banded maximums as it is on individuals.

Corporate, employee taxes

Partnerships, S-corporations, and limited liability corporations can deduct as a general business expense the entire premium paid for employee's qualified long-term care plans without regard to the age-banded limits or the 7.5 percent threshold. The premiums are not taxed as income to the employee and the benefits are received income-tax free.

Partners, greater than 2 percent owners of an S-corporation, and member/owners of a limited liability corporation are treated a little differently. Premiums paid on behalf of these groups are still deductible to the business. They are seen as self-employed, therefore receiving a 40 percent self-employed deduction and carries the additional premium over to his individual return.

Regular corporations (C-Corporations) benefit the most from the tax law changes: There is no differentiation between owners and employees. A C-Corporation can deduct the entire premium paid for qualified long-term care insurance contracts on it's employees. The premiums are not taxable to the employee, and the employee receives benefits tax free. There are no special nondiscrimination requirements imposed, so corporations can provide the coverage on a specific group of employees. Consult your benefit adviser to ensure compliance both with current law and potential future regulations.

Independence

Maintain your independence and your freedom to choose. Long-term care insurance policies may provide protection for care or assistance received in a personal residence or a nursing home. To help maintain independence at home, many policies will also provide benefits if help is needed around the home with chores such as: meal preparation, housework, assistance with grooming and dressing, taking medications, and shopping.

Long-term care insurance can allow the freedom to choose home health car, freedom to control retirement savings or assets, and freedom to select the provider or facility of choice. Long-term care is not just nursing home care. In fact, a long-term care policy could be the only thing that keeps you out of the nursing home.—By Alan Friedlander

TCIC to purchase Jones Intercable's Chicago-area cable systems

TCI Communications, Inc. (TCIC), announced that it has signed letters of intent with partnerships managed by Jones Intercable, Inc. to purchase their suburban Illinois cable properties, serving approximately 255,000 customers in and around Aurora, Lake County, Lake Zurich, Naperville, Orland Park, Matteson, and Wheaton.

"We are excited to add these communities to the foundation that TCIC has established throughout the Chicagoland area," said Leo J. Hindery, Jr., president and CEO of TCIC. "The Chicago marketplace is a significant regional cluster which TCIC serves with continued dedication and pride. We have demonstrated a strong commitment to this region and its residents. With future advancements in our products and ever-increasing customer service in each of our major markets, we hope to continue to be the telecommunications provider of choice."

"This agreement is another step toward our goal of becoming an owned-asset company, rather than primarily a management company," said Glenn R. Jones, Chairman and CEO of Jones Intercable. "It will allow us to concentrate more fully on our owned cable systems in the operating clusters we have built."

A list of the communities included in the agreements is attached.

Additional terms of the letters of intent were not disclosed. The transaction is subject to the signing of definitive agreements and all appropriate regulatory approvals, and is expected to close in early 1999.

TCI, which serves close to 700,000 customers in the Chicagoland area and northwest Indiana, is part of one of the nation's largest cable operators, TCI (Tele-Communications, Inc.). Employing nearly 1,700 local residents, TCI makes its premier cable television services available to more than 160 communities.

Tele-Communications, Inc. is traded through the TCI Group, the TCI Ventures Group and the Liberty Media Group common stocks. The Series A and B TCI Group common stocks are traded on the National Market tier of the NASDAQ Stock Market under the symbols of TCOMA and TCOMB, respectively.

The areas in Lake County involved in the Jones/TCIC agreements are: Grayslake, Hawthorn Woods, Indian Creek, Lake Zurich, Libertyville, Long Grove, Mundelein, Vernon Hills, and Wauconda.

Seniors, baby-boomers 'cash in' on bank club perks

It is 7:30 a.m. on a beautiful fall morning in Cresco, Iowa and Bootie Kapler, club director at the Cresco Union Savings Bank, boards a shining motorcoach with 40 of her bank's senior club members.

Ahead lies a trip to Branson, and Bootie warmly greets her customers over the microphone, checks her clipboard and announces the start of the event. As the coach pulls out of the bank parking lot, the bank's president, on hand for the departure, waves as customers enthusiastically wave back. It's one of the many October events offered by Cresco's most popular community program, the bank's renowned Union VIP Club.

Bootie Kapler has been in her job since 1987 and knows every one of her 1,700 Union VIP Club members by name. She has traveled the world with them from Branson to Banff, from Paris to Prague. In addition to travel, Bootie organizes seminars, parties, pot luck dinners and health fairs, including flu shots. She also has become an expert in the development of local merchant discount programs offering special discounts to Union VIP Members. She frequently polls the Club's membership about ideas for new services, working with members to supply the additional services they seek. "Bank clubs are essential in our efforts to provide specialized service to our clients," explains Rodger Johnston, president of the American Heritage National Bank in Long Prairie, Minn. "Our Pioneer Club is the backbone of our bank's marketing program. Our club helps people enjoy life more fully and nurture friendships."

Johnston designed and built a log cabin bank covering 33,000 square feet in St. Cloud. In one year the structure has become a Minnesota landmark. The bank's Prairie Companion Club is one of the most successful bank clubs in the country with more than 1,200 members.

According to Johnston, the Prairie Companion Club's philosophy is that "life is a special gift and great adventure for all to enjoy." A capacity crowd recently attended the club's Annual Comedy Variety Show in the 12,000 sq. ft. Log Bank Ballroom. The event featured an evening of fun and laughter with coffee and dessert. Price of admission was a donation of food or cash to the local community food shelf. The audience included bank and club customers and other community residents some of which arrived by bus or car from the bank's locations in Long Prairie and Browerville, and from as far away as the Twin Cities. The event generated a record contribution to the food shelf.

Seniors reap initial benefits

Long before senior marketing became a Madison Avenue buzz word, community banks were offering seniors meaningful services and incentives to open accounts. Many bank clubs offer free checks, free travelers checks, a free checking account, free or discounted safety box rental and a free ATM card as standard perks. Other regular features include a newsletter, free movies and travel activities. Seminars on topics ranging from trust services to resume writing and Valentine's Day and Christmas parties usually round out a full social schedule. The average bank club has 1,500 members.

"Over the last 10 years, thousands of banks have successfully launched senior clubs," says Daniel Prins, President of NABOR, the National Association Of Bank Club Organizations. "With their caring approach and valuable services our member banks have become veritable community centers for senior depositors." NABOR, headquartered in Minneapolis, Minn., is a non-profit organization providing education, benefit programs and professional networking opportunities for banks and has 3,000 registered members nationwide representing some 4,500,000 senior depositors.

Focus turns to baby boomers

Many banks are not merely concentrating on senior citizens, however. They have added new layers of services appealing to the exploding Baby Boom market. In addition to the traditional senior club features such as free checks, free travelers checks, and free will copy storage, many banks are now offering overdraft protection, discounts on mortgage closing costs and automatic funds transfer.

The latter services appeal to the 50-plus generation. Bank Kids Clubs have also become popular to encourage youngsters to open savings accounts. The efforts have met with positive results. "We just started our Golden Image Club last November, and we included some new club features such as special interest options and an attractive CD rate coupon," says Ann Rysavy, marketing director at Commercial State Bank in Wagner, S.D. "To appeal to Baby Boomers we added accidental death insurance, prescription drug discounts and 50 percent off in thousands of hotels across the country. Results have exceeded our expectations."

As banks recognize the enormous market potential of the Baby Boom generation, new services are being developed. "In addition to our regular programs for senior clubs such as Cherry Blossom trips and Alaska cruises, we are now offering a Costa Rica ecology trip and golf outings for younger club members," says Jim Pfleider, president of Gage Travel in Minneapolis, one of the leading firms specializing in bank club travel.

Many banks are also recognizing the importance of today's technology. The seniors of yesterday didn't want to use ATM machines," notes Steve Lichtenfels, director of Retail Applications at Online Resources and Communications Corp. in McLean, Va., the industry leader in providing electronic banking to financial institutions.

PUBLIC NOTICE
PUBLIC INFORMATION OPEN HOUSE
LAKE COUNTY FOREST PRESERVE
West Loop Trail/Grand Illinois Trail Connection
Singing Hills Forest Preserve

A public information open house will be held to review the West Loop/Grand Illinois Trail Project for West Central Lake County. In 1989, the Lake County Forest Preserve (District) Board of Commissioners approved a 33-mile trail corridor project through central and west central Lake County. A portion of this proposed trail corridor is also part of the Illinois Department of Natural Resources' proposed 450-mile Grand Illinois Trail through northern Illinois.

This public information meeting is part of the requirement for a state grant to purchase land for the West Loop/Grand Illinois Trail Project at the Singing Hills Forest Preserve at Gilmer and Fish Lake Roads.

Date: Tuesday, April 28, 1998
Time: 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.
Place: Lake County Museum
Directions: Located in Lakewood Forest Preserve, on Route 176 just west of Fairfield Road, near the Village of Wauconda

Members of the community are invited to attend the public information open house any time between 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Project staff will be on hand with exhibits to review and answer questions regarding the extension of this multi-purpose recreational trail in Lake County.

Written and verbal comments regarding the trail project may be submitted at the meeting for the official record.

The meeting room is wheelchair accessible. For additional information concerning the public information open house or the project, contact:

How To Survive The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Dear Search:

My husband has been unemployed for almost two years. He cannot find any positions in his field (accounting). He is 42 years old and cannot enter into another field without experience. We have a preschool child which requires day care. What careers can you suggest which would command a salary high enough to cover this expense ($5,200 a year)? How can he compete in other fields when his is unsuccessful in his own with many years of experience? Fortunately, I am working full time. We have no family members able to care for our preschool child.
A.K.-Morton Grove

Dear A.K.:

I was surprised to see that you had not included a copy of your husband's resume. While you state that your husband has been unemployed for almost two years, the circumstances surrounding his unemployment have been omitted. You mention that his field is accounting yet further failed to mention the type of accounting your husband is involved with. What is his forte? Is your husband degreed... a Tax professional... Accounts Payable Coordinator.. CPA... Payroll Coordinator... Senior Cost Analyst...? Without proper information, the possibilities are too numerous for me to assume the avenue for him to take. Your husband needs to sit down and evaluate what facets of accounting he is capable of handling and is willing to pursue either as a step up or a step back. I will say however, letting us assume that your husband was the Controller of a small manufacturing facility, he may wish to pursue a position in Cost Management for mid to large size corporations. It may also be that he needs to take a step back in order to get two steps ahead. As for your situation with child care, check out larger corporations offering child care as an employee benefit. Another alternative is to find a neighbor or friend that may be willing to watch your child in the a.m. in trade for you watching theirs in the p.m. If your husband is interested, he may wish to contact me for further information which I would be pleased to provide. Good Luck.

Note: Nancy Sakol is a licensed personnel professional and President of Superior Personnel in Gurnee.

CALLING ALL FARMERS MARKETS!!!

We will be doing a Special Farmers Market Directory starting in June and running for 10 weeks @ $97.50. Please send us your payment along with a listing, typed or neatly printed, with the Market's location, start date, day of operation and time to: Lakeland Publishers, P.O. Box 268, 30 S. Whitney St., Grayslake, IL 60030. Attn: Farmers Market Directory. We also need a phone number to call and verify the information. Submissions must be received by May 25th. IF YOU HAVE ANY QUESTIONS, PLEASE CALL US AT (847) 223-8161 AND ASK FOR THE CLASSIFIED DEPARTMENT.

A "TAIL" OF WOE

"BABE" is a female, 4-5 yr. old pure bred Foxhound. Black and tan, with striking white patches, she was found as a stray in Beach Park and came to Orphans, nearly starved, in Feb. 1997. Although Babe is grateful for the food and care she receives here, she is lonely and clearly miserable. Some dogs just can't cope with the noise and commotion of a shelter environment. Babe is a sensitive dog, and she will only thrive in a loving home. Babe desperately needs to have a nurturing, ongoing trusting relationship with that special someone who will surround her with the gentle affection she yearns for. Calm and attentive, Babe will respond beautifully to consistent, positive reinforcement and encouragement, and become again a happy, confident, contented girl. If you have a heart for a dog like Babe, she can be found in Cage 75.

ALL DOGS BENEFIT FROM BASIC HOUSEBREAKING & OBEDIENCE TRAINING WHICH HELPS BOND DOG TO OWNER. CRATING IS RECOMMENDED WHEN THE OWNER IS AWAY FOR THE FIRST YEAR IF NEEDED.

Cash $55 donation includes free spay/neuter, collar, tag, leash, first shots, follow up care and much more.

Orphans of the Storm is located at 2200 Riverwoods Rd., Deerfield. Hours are 11 am to 5 pm, seven days a week. Call (847) 945-0235 for further information.

Sewing By Design
Women's, Children's Clothing & Alterations

Dear Lisa,

Last week I began placing ads in many local papers, Learn to Sew & Sewing by Design. I thought starting a new business would be more difficult, but thanks to Lisa at the Market Journal, it has been very easy.

I started getting calls right away. I began asking where they read about my sewing business. Most people replied that they found it in the Market Journal. As to date I have gotten no response from any other papers that I placed ads in.

I want to thank you for all of your help. Thank you to the Market Journal for helping me to get my sewing business off the ground.

Thanks again,

Elena
